burg, West Virginia, in 1798, and came to Milford township with his parents in 1804. At the age of seventeen he learned blacksmithing, which trade he followed fifty-three years. Mr. Freeze has a remarkable memory, and is well versed in history, both local and national. His wife, Hannah, is still living, and is four months older than Mr. Freeze.

John McMillen, one of the early settlers, lived in Turkey-Foot township. Among his children were: John, James, Samuel, Jane (Bays), Sarah (Davis) and Margaret (Lenhart). John was born in Turkey-Foot, and resided there until his death, following the tanner's trade. His first wife was Mary, daughter of Jacob Rush. Rush was an early settler, and lived to be about ninety-eight years old. John McMillen's second wife was Sarah Critchfield, and his third, Clarissa Williams. His children: Jacob, Jehu, Reuben, Eli, William (deceased), Silas and John (deceased). Reuben McMillen learned the saddlery business in the shop of Michael Snyder; purchased the shop in 1849, and still conducts the business.

Samuel H. Dull, Esq., son of Peter Dull, was born and reared on the Dull homestead, in Milford township. When eighteen years of age he began learning the wagonmaker's trade in the shop of Aaron Will. In 1851 he started in business for himself. In August, 1862, he was mustered into service in Co. H, 142d regt. Penn. Vols.; mustered out in June, 1865. He has been justice of the peace ten years, besides holding other minor offices.

GEBHARTSBURG.

Gebhartsburg (Gebhart's postoffice) is a small collection of houses, one-half mile east of New Centreville. Village lots were laid out in this place on November 22, 1834, at the same time with New Centreville. George Gebhart was the founder of the place, and Simon Gebhart, his son, did the surveying. Until 1881, Gebhartsburg was the voting-place of Milford township. In that year, by vote of the citizens, two polling-places were established, the eastern half of the township voting at Rockwood, and the western half at Gebhartsburg.

The first house, after the lots were laid off, was erected by Henry Walter in 1835. It is a large frame building, used both as a store and a dwelling. In this building Charles A. Walter now carries on a successful mercantile business, but it is owned by the widow of John Weller.

Opposite the old store is the site of one of the old log taverns of pioneer days. George Gebhart was the landlord, and is said to have entertained George Washington in the old house. The old structure disappeared about 1822, and the brick tavern stand, now owned by Mrs. Weller, took its place.

George Gebhart was the first blacksmith, probably over a hundred years ago. He had a shop on the old tavern site. It was afterward rebuilt on another spot, and has since been torn away and rebuilt twice.

The first schoolhouse in Gebhartsburg was erected in 1848, and rebuilt in 1860. The postoffice, the first in the township, was established about 1808. Postmasters: John Gebhart, Geo. Gebhart, John Knable, Robert Walter, and Charles A. Walter, present incumbent.

The cheese-factory at the lower end of Gebhartsburg was built by Charles A. Walter, in 1877, and is now owned by J. C. Weller. Gebhartsburg has one store, one hotel, one blacksmith-shop and a cheese-factory.

CHURCHES.

The first house of worship in the township was erected on James Wilson's farm by the Lutherans and Presbyterians. It was a rude log structure, and was erected long before 1800. Rev. Steck (1783–94) was probably the first Lutheran preacher here, succeeded by Rev. Frederick W. Long (1794–1808). Near the old church stood the first schoolhouse ever built in Milford. At present there are two Lutheran churches in the township—Laurel church, three miles south of Rockwood, and Pine church, three miles east of Centreville. Laurel church has a membership of about ninety, and is at present without a pastor. It was built at a cost of about twelve hundred dollars. Pine church cost nearly the same amount. It at present has about eighty members. There are also three union churches in the township: Sanners Lutheran and Reformed, about four miles east of New Centreville; Union church, three miles east of Centreville, and Pleasant Hill church, three miles northeast of Centreville. A Brethren or German Baptist meeting-house was built about 1855 at a cost of one thousand dollars. The membership is large.

Dr. McMillan Hunts for His Brother

The World Keeps Singing

The world keeps singing, though our hearts are sad,
Though tragedies are found on every hand,
And Life, it seems has naught to make us glad,
Success and Fame, the things for which we planned
Have passed us by; dreams we cannot forget
Return to mock us at our lack of skill,
Our futile efforts to achieve, and yet,
In spite of these, the world is singing still.

But, from each drama wrought of pain and tears,
Is born the melody of some sweet song
That holds a promise as it spurs and cheers
With lyric cadence meant to keep us strong.
Fresh inspiration there will always be—
The world keeps singing on for you and me.

—Sara Roberta Getty

Your Genealogical Estate

An appeal is made to members of the Society to give consideration to the ultimate disposition of your records, books, research and other genealogical material. This has been brought up in recent months by conversations — some on the phone — with several of our "older" (80-90) members—some of whom have indicated they have no immediate interested relatives to whom such a bequest could be made. We urge them — and all members in due time — to give consideration to our Society as the sole or partial beneficiary of such valuable material. Don't let your years of fruitful labor be lost to posterity.

ANNUAL MEETING

The annual business meeting of the society membership has been set for Friday, April 23, 1965, 7:30 p.m., at the Library auditorium, 230 South Rosina Avenue, Somerset. The nominating committee is composed of John O. Stoner, Mrs. John W. Stein and Philip M. Schaff.

(Extracts from the Journal or Diary of Dr. McMillan, showing his travels, with the thought of trying to locate his brother William McMillan.)

As shown by the diary his brother William lived in Brothers Valley, some where East of Johnstown Pa. We know of one son he had, who attended the Jefferson College, and graduated with its first class in 1802.

Saturday—Rode 13 miles to Fort Pitt. and lodged at Mr. Armobey's. The 2nd Sabbath of September 1775, preached at Ft. Pitts. and rode about 7 miles to Thos Ross, where I tarried till Tuesday. Tuesday rode about 14 miles to Eli Coulter's in company with Samuel Ross, Wednesday preached at a meeting house on Long Run, (On Lincoln Highway about 2½ miles west of Irwin) Thursday rode 20 miles to Hannastown, and lodged with Robert Hannah's till Sabbath.

Wednesday—I rode in company with Mr. and Mrs. Hannah and Robert Sample, about 10 miles to William Ferry's, on Loyal Hannah.

Thursday—Returned to Hannahstown, Saturday left Hannahstown and rode 18 miles to Samuel Irwin on Conamaugh. The 4th Sabbath of September 1775. preached at Conamaugh at a place in the woods nigh William Dunlap, returned in the evening to Mr. Irwins.

Monday—Rode about 7 miles to Mr. Sloan's, where I continued until Wednesday, preaching at Proctors tent and lodged with Mr. Lochry.

Thursday — rode about 24 miles, across the Laurel Hill, and in the evening came to James McMillan in Brothers Valley where I met my BROTHER. Here I left in company with my brother to go to his house (manuscript defective) on, and the path scarcely discoverable in daylight, we lost our way, and after wandering till we were tired, we lay down by the root of a tree and wished for day. The night was very cold and some what wet; we slept little, I broke my old shin going over some of the logs which lay everywhere, plenty in the woods. Friday we left our cold lodging as soon as daylight appeared and after a little we found the path and came where we desired to be the night before. Here I spent the rest of the day, and in the evening went down again to James McMillan, where I preached and tarried there all night, Saturday, went again over the Laurel Hills, and lodged with Robert Laughlin, (Could this be what is now Laughlintown?)

The first Sabbath of October 1775, preached at Ligonier and in the evening returned to Mr. Laughlin.

Monday—Set out on my journey homeward, (Fagg's Manor) crossing the Laural Hill between Quenishone and Stony Creek. After riding 24 miles we came to John Millers' at the foot of the Allegheny Mts. Tuesday crossed the Mts. and in the evening came to Bedford, where I met William McCombs, with whom I tarried that night. This day we rode about 30 miles.

P.S. Dr. McMillan was the founder of the first College of the West, Washington and Jefferson of today, I have been collecting records of his life, which I want to compile in book form, the Dr. had two brothers and three sisters, I have a record of Thomas who died in Mifflin Twp., but I have never been able to learn any thing about William of near Johnstown. My thought was by giving you these records, you could tell me about where I could locate his farm, and possibly in that way, locate some of the family. I now have a record of over 1600 persons who are his descendants and the most of them I have the date of their birth, marriage, and death. Thanking you for any information you can give.

Village Is Restored

The Ontario Pioneer Community Foundation has restored one of the early villages from which many towns and cities grew; the typical center of rural life and the source of supply for most of the needs of the pioneer settlers. With an area of 55 acres, close to the first inland settlement in Upper Canada established in 1799, the generously wooded land has a quiet pond and a bridged stream, a museum, barn, village store, smithy, printery, house, church and other pioneer structures. It is located on the Grand river at the crossing of Highway No. 8, south of Kitchener, Ontario. Nearby is Homer Watson Memorial Park, home of the artist Homer Watson.

Kentucky: A History of the State, Battle, Perrin, & Kniffin, 7th ed., 1887, Kenton Co.

THOMAS RANKIN was a citizen of Harrison County, Kentucky., and came from Virginia in the early settlement of Kentucky. He was the father of eleven children: Simeon, John, David, Robert, James, Thomas, Jane (Dawson), William, Samuel, Sarah (Chambers) and Hannah (Boyd). Thomas Rankin was the first constable in Harrison County, died and is buried in Cynthiana, Kentucky. Thomas Rankin, son of Thomas Rankin mentioned above, was born April 11, 1784, in Virginia, and received a common-school education in youth. He was married, July 11, 1816, to Nancy McMillen, a daughter of Robert and Mary (Stroad) McMillen, both of Clark County, Kentucky. Robert McMillen was wealthy, owning large property in Clark County, and giving his children all good estates. The McMillen and Stroad families are of Scotch origin. To the marriage of Thomas Rankin were born five children: Mary J. (Kellar) deceased; Thomas R., deceased; Oscar F.; Andrew F., deceased, and James W. who died in infancy. Oscar F. is the only one now living. Thomas Rankin accumulated a fair estate in Harrison County, and in life was a member of the Methodist Episcopal Church. He was jailer of Harrison County for several years, and died on December 18, 1851. Mrs. Rankin, who was also a member of the Methodist Episcopal Church, died February 6, 1865, in the sixty-fifth year of age. The Rankin family are of Scotch descent, are highly respected, and among the prominent families of Kentucky. Oscar Rankin was born November 23, 1821, in Harrison County. In youth he received his education at the academy of Cynthiana, and while yet a young man was deputy clerk of Harrison County Court for many years. He began the study of law under the preceptorship of William K. Wall, of Cynthiana, and completed his legal studies under the tutorage of Prof. R. A. Forester, of Georgetown College. He was admitted to the bar, and began the practice of law in 1849, in Cynthiana, remaining until 1855, when he removed to Kenton County, where he has since lived. The occasion of this removal was his marriage to Miss Mary C. Wilson, a daughter of Aquilla and Mary (Wilson) Wilson, of Virginia, who came from near Winchester, and owned about 900 acres of land near Independence. To this marriage were born two children: Eugene B., who was married to Miss Naomi McCollum, and William, who died November 18, 1859, in infancy. Mr. Rankin was elected county attorney of Kenton County, and re-elected to that position, serving the people in that capacity from 1866 to 1874. He owns and has in cultivation 115 acres of well improved land worth $13,000. He has retired from active business, which is now being conducted by his son Eugene B. Rankin.

JOHN McMILLAN, D.D.
born 1752 died 16 Nov. 1833

with the Pennsylvania forces. In 1766, Revs. Messrs. Charles Beatty and George Duffield were sent by the Synod to explore the frontier settlements and ascertain the condition of the Indians. They arrived at Pittsburgh on the 5th of September, finding Chaplain McLagan in spiritual charge of the fort. On the following Sabbath Mr. Beatty preached in the fort, and both the missionaries preached to the people who lived outside the fort. Then they proceeded to the Muskingum, whence they returned to Pittsburgh, and then to their homes in the East.[1]

Soon after Mr. Beatty's visit, Mr. Anderson was appointed to visit this region, with the promise of twenty shillings for every Sabbath he should preach "on the other side of the Kittatining Mountains."

In 1769 the Synod ordered the Presbytery of Donegal to supply the western frontier with ten Sabbaths of ministerial labor.

In 1771, Rev. Finley spent two months in missionary labors west of the Alleghenies. He came on horseback with a single companion, to make a preliminary exploration. He is said to have been the first pioneer missionary who visited the Washington County region. He purchased some land there, and in the assessment of tenants for Bedford County his name appears on the rolls.[2]

Rev. James Power was the first regularly ordained minister who settled in Western Pennsylvania. He passed through Westmoreland County in 1774, when he spent three months in missionary labor in the settlements. In 1776 he came with his family. He preached to the people at various places, where they afterwards had congregations, and supplied their wants till they organized and got other pastors. In 1779, after five years of missionary work, he became pastor of Mount Pleasant and Sewickley congregations, and of Mount Pleasant he continued pastor till he was incapacitated from age (1817). The other places of his earlier labors were at Dunlap's Creek, Laurel Hill, Tyrone, Unity, and Congruity.

Mount Pleasant Church was about two miles northwest of the present town. The town was called after the name of the meeting-house of the congregation, which name of itself is a familiar Scotch-Irish one, and is applied to various townships and meeting-houses in the earlier settlements of Pennsylvania and Maryland. On the Sabbath[3] preceding the burning of Hannastown, Dr. Power was in the neighboring settlement somewhere. It has always been currently reported that he was officiating at Proctor's Tent, the old name for Unity Church, on the fast-day preceding communion services; that the men, as was their usual custom, had come to preaching with their guns, and that on hearing the commotion about the stockade the people dispersed, some of the men going towards the town.[4]

John McMillan, a Princeton man, and a name high-sounding among men, preached in 1775 among the people of our (now Washington) county, and in 1776 he received a call from the Chartiers settlement, the name of the settlement along the Chartiers Creek. He was ordained fifteen days before the signing of the Declaration. In 1778 he removed with his young wife, and from that time devoted the able energies of a long life to active parochial duties and to educa-

[1] Some of these ministers came out on a different errand than that of spreading the gospel, as Rev. John Steele, of Carlisle, who commanded a company under Armstrong in the Kittanning Expedition, 1756.

[2] Without citing authorities for all our statements, we would say we are indebted in general for data for the part which refers to Presbyterianism to "Old Redstone," "Life of Macurdy," "Centenary Memorial," and contemporaneous authoritative documents published by authority of that church.

[3] Sunday was always called the "Sabbath," after the custom of the Scotch.

[4] These following five ministers were here before the Redstone Presbytery was organized:

John Finley was the first of the pioneer ministers who visited this region. He came on horseback, with a single companion, to explore the country and prepare the way for a permanent settlement. He was at this time in the prime of life, about forty years of age; born in the province of Ulster, Ireland; educated at the Fagg's Manor School. He was ordained by the Presbytery of New Castle in 1752.

In person he was a fat, nervous, florid little man, able to endure hardships, and prepared as soon as circumstances would admit to cast in his lot with the new settlements. He moved thither with his family in 1783, and about two years afterwards became pastor of the churches of Rehoboth and Round Hill, first called "Upper and Lower Meeting-Houses." Of these churches he continued pastor until his death, Jan. 6, 1795.

James Power, D.D., first visited the new settlements in 1774. He was born in Chester County, Pa., in 1746, graduated at Princeton in 1766, licensed by the Presbytery of New Castle June 24, 1772. In 1776 he was ordained by the same Presbytery sine titulo, the reason being assigned that "he was about to remove to the western parts of this Province." Mr. Power moved across the mountains with all his family and household effects packed on horseback. The minister carried the eldest daughter on a pillion behind him, and the youngest in his arms. The two other daughters were seated in baskets hung on either side of another horse, the mother on a third, and the household effects on other horses. After performing missionary work for some five years he became pastor of the churches of Sewickley and Mount Pleasant. In 1787 he was released from the charge of the Sewickley Church, but continued with Mount Pleasant until 1817. He died Aug. 5, 1830, aged eighty-five years. Mr. Power was of medium height, erect, slender, graceful in manner, and extremely neat in dress; as a preacher he was clear, methodical, and evangelical.

John McMillan, D.D., was the next man on the ground, of Irish descent, born at Fagg's Manor in 1752, graduated at Princeton, licensed in 1744. He first visited the West in 1775. He returned the next year, but owing to Indian difficulties did not remove his family to now Washington County until 1778, when he took charge of the congregations of Chartiers and Pigeon Creek. From the latter he was dismissed about the year 1800; of the former he continued pastor until about 1830. He died at Cannonsburg, Pa., Nov. 16, 1833, in the eighty-first year of his age. Dr. McMillan was rough and brusque in his personal appearance and address, even slovenly. He was six feet in height, rough-hewn in features, and with a voice that was like the rumbling of thunder.

Thaddeus Dodd was born in New Jersey, March, 1740. His parents were from Connecticut. He graduated at Princeton in 1773, licensed in 1775, came to the West in 1777. He became pastor of the churches of 'Upper and Lower Ten-Mile," in Washington County. Died May 20, 1793, in the fifty-fourth year of his age.

Joseph Smith was a Marylander, born at Nottingham in 1736, graduated at Princeton in 1764, licensed Aug. 5, 1767, came to the West in 1769. In the following spring he moved out, and became pastor of Buffalo and Cross Creek congregations, Washington County. He preached there until his death, April, 1792, at the age of fifty-six. Although tall and slender, fair in complexion, fine countenance, and brilliant eyes, he spoke so largely of the terrors of the law that he was called "Hellfire Smith."

tional interests. In 1779, Rev. Joseph Smith, a Princeton graduate, preached also in that part of the county now of Washington. This was on a prospecting visit, and the next year he received a call. These men supplied the congregations through our part of the county for several years, Dr. McMillan preaching perhaps as early as 1775 to the men in the woods at Proctor's and Lochry's. Of McMillan much has been written and said, and it appears deservingly. Had he lived in the patristic era of Christianity, and been surrounded by such men as Tertullian and Origen, he would have been canonized. As it was, he appears to have gone part of the way, for he received the sobriquet of "Cardinal" at the time he helped to form political opinion in favor of Jefferson.

To these three ministers must be added Rev. Thaddeus Dodd and Rev. Joseph Smith, whose services were more identified with the region beyond the rivers and within the Washington County district. These five had established congregations all through the southwestern portion of Pennsylvania; they came here to stay, and they were the first ministers here at the organization of the famous "Old Redstone Presbytery," the mother of the Presbyteries of the West.

The Presbytery of Redstone was erected by the Synod of New York and Philadelphia on the 16th of May, 1781. It was directed to meet at Laurel Hill, in what is now Fayette County, on the third Monday of September following, at eleven o'clock A.M. The time approached, but the incursions of the Indians in the neighborhood of some of the members of the Presbytery rendered the meeting at Laurel Hill impracticable. The meeting was held at Pigeon Creek, Washington County. There were present the Revs. Messrs. John McMillan, James Power, and Thaddeus Dodd; Elders John Neil, Demas Lindley, and Patrick Scott; absent, Rev. Joseph Smith.

This was the first meeting of Presbytery west of the Allegheny Mountains. The second meeting was a failure, no quorum appearing. The third meeting was also a failure, "owing to the incursions of the savages." Its last meeting as the sole undivided Presbytery of the West was held on the 18th of October, 1793. It held forty-one meetings. Of these in the churches of the Presbytery which were and still are in Westmoreland it met five times at Rehoboth, twice at Mount Pleasant, once at Fairfield, and once at Long Run.

As all these churches, with some others within this Presbytery, were organized so much earlier, and as they have each of them a history, we may be pardoned for calling attention to them here, as we have elsewhere given their history at length.

REHOBOTH, or Upper Meeting-House (as Roundhill was called Lower Meeting-House), is believed to be among the oldest congregations of the Presbyterian denomination in the county. It is in Rostraver township, and about nine miles from Roundhill, which is in Allegheny County. The Rev. James Finley visited this part of the county in 1772, and preached to a few scattered whites living among the Indians. About 1778 he gathered the people here into regularly organized congregations, and in 1784 he took the pastoral charge of them. He died Jan. 6, 1795. After remaining vacant for two years, the Rev. David Smith was installed over them, and he dying Aug. 24, 1803, was succeeded by Rev. William Wylie in 1805. Dr. Wylie continued their pastor till the spring of 1817, when he was succeeded by the Rev. Robert Johnston. These congregations, being on the border, suffered much from the depredations of the savages.

MOUNT PLEASANT Church was organized probably in 1776, when Dr. Power removed to the West. It was supplied by him from that period till the spring of 1779, when he became the pastor of the united congregations of Mount Pleasant and Sewickley. On the 22d of August, 1787, he was dismissed from Sewickley, and continued the pastor of Mount Pleasant till April 15, 1817, when, from age and infirmity, he resigned his charge. It continued vacant till April 18, 1821, when the Rev. A. O. Patterson, D.D., was ordained and installed pastor of the united congregations of Sewickley and Mount Pleasant.

SEWICKLEY Church is supposed to have been organized by Dr. Power in 1776. He continued the pastor, in connection with Mount Pleasant, till August, 1787, when he resigned the pastoral care of Sewickley. The charge continued vacant until, in union with Long Run, it became the pastoral charge of the Rev. William Swan, Oct. 16, 1793. It again became vacant Oct. 18, 1818. In 1821 the congregation united with Mount Pleasant, and called Rev. Patterson to the pastorate.

LONG RUN, it is said, dates as early as the Redstone Presbytery, 1781. It was supplied by the Presbytery till 1793, when it united with Sewickley, and called Rev. William Swan to become their pastor. He continued their pastor till Oct. 18, 1818, when he resigned this united charge, but in the following summer was again installed pastor of Long Run alone, and continued in this relation till, at his request, it was dissolved April 17, 1822.

FAIRFIELD was early organized, and after being supplied by the Presbytery for a number of years, it at length, in connection with Donegal and Wheatfield, obtained as its pastor the Rev. George Hill, who was ordained and installed among them Nov. 13, 1792. He continued the pastor of this church until his death, June 17, 1822. On the 17th of June, 1824, the Rev. Samuel Swan was ordained pastor of Fairfield, in connection with Ligonier and Donegal.

UNITY was organized about 1776. There was preaching here for a number of years before there was a church. The place was known as Proctor's Tent. The present church is the third building of the congregation. Among its first members were the Proctors, the Lochrys, the Sloans, Craigs, and William Findley. They were at first served by supplies.

farmer's house had a spinning-wheel and reel, every third or fourth house had a loom.

Modern machinery has done away with the primitive method of working up the wool and flax. Instead of the lonely matron plying her endless task by the flickering tallow-dip throughout the misty winter nights, now a thousand hooks and fingers grasp the flying threads and weave them in endless sheets of handsome textile fabrics. The combing, the carding, the fulling, the dyeing are all done by silent, dumb hands. While the manufacture of flax has been revolutionized, the manufacture of wool has been developed and perfected.

There is a short saying sprung from the days of homespun clothing, which saying yet obtains among quite a number of the common people of Chestnut Ridge and through the Valley, and which indeed has not been confined to only this locality, but has extended out and found its way into the slang vocabulary of polite society and even into print. Although the idea had existed in different shape, and now exists in different shape, yet the origin of this expression has been so definitely fixed, and it is so plainly traceable to a particular occasion, and on such good authority that we cannot forbear mentioning of it here. Then, in the days when spinsters were truly spinsters, when those virgins that lived in single blessedness to good old age, and beguiled their leisure, not like "Mariana in the moated grange," but rather like virtuous Queen Catherine at the wheel, there lived at the foot of Laurel Hill, in Ligonier Valley, one Betsy Geiger, who did the spinning and weaving, as far as she was able, for the whole neighborhood. Among her customers was a man named McGinnis, who brought to her his quota of wool and flax with orders to have the stripes of the cloth diversified in a pattern peculiar to a fancy of his own. The cloth was duly made in alternate checkers of copperas-colored wool and "snow-white under-linen," after the commonly received pattern and fashion. When McGinnis called for the stuff and saw it he would not take it. He expected, no doubt, as it was supposed, on some such frivolous excuse to get it at a loss to the spinster. But an action was forthwith instituted before a justice of the peace to recover justice for the piece, and that the complainant might have peace. Brought face to face before the squire, the magistrate demanded of the defendant, "What is your reason for not taking this stuff off the hands of this honest woman, the plaintiff?" His reply, addressed to the plaintiff,—we may presume with some Dogberry in it,—was ready and quick, "It isn't the right stripe, Betty, it isn't the right stripe." The word, taken up and carried from mouth to mouth, is now used chiefly to describe the character of such a man as he who involuntarily brought it into use.

The dress and costumes of the early settlers were an admixture of a civilized and a half-civilized description. The Indians approached the whites, and the whites met them half-way. The Indians gained all, and the whites lost a part. The hunting-shirt of the men, the most universal dress for a long time, was a frockish coat which fitted tightly about the waist and shoulders, while the skirt was allowed to reach to the knees. The sleeves were large and roomy, and the lappels on the front were allowed to extend almost the distance of a foot on either side, and were made to button. A heavy cape hung down the back, and all the borders were decorated with a fringe of ravellings of different colors. The material was linsey-woolsey, a name which the early people gave, as we have said, to an admixture of stuff whose component parts were tow or flax and wool; that is, linen-woolen. Often, however, this hunting-shirt was of doeskin, which, if well tanned, would last almost a lifetime. In the bosom of the coat were carried bread, jerk, or tow. The tomahawk or hatchet was fastened to the belt on the right side, and the knife in a sheath to the left. Breeches were the universal dress for the legs, and these mostly were made of buckskin. Yellow (or the natural color) and black were the favorite colors, and these were worn by ministers, attorneys, militia colonels, such indeed as assumed to the quality class. These wore shoes with buckles in the summer, and in the winter high-topped boots, sometimes of raw-hide, and sometimes faced with high-colored cloth. The common people had nothing but moccasins, which were made of a single piece of leather or untanned deerskin. The seam was along the top, and they reached above the ankle.

When at length it became fashionable for men to dress in cloth, the people being poor many inconveniences were suffered. It might be called pride, but we do not know whether it exactly is pride. This, however, is a fact of history: When the first court opened at Catfish,—that is, Washington,—in 1781, a citizen, who as a magistrate was compelled to attend, had to borrow a pair of leather breeches from a respectable neighbor, who himself had been summoned as a grand juror, but who from this interposition had to stay at home.[1] As many as nineteen grooms are known to have been married in the same blue coat with brass buttons; and this for hire, or generous loan.[2] Such an addition was a striking feature, and on the same principle a very old gentleman, in describing the appearance of Col. Christopher Truby, said that he had "red-topped boots, and wore his hair in a black silk bag."

We have the description of the dress of the gentleman of a later period from a fortunate circumstance. It is old, but we trust it will bear repetition here. President Dunlap, of Cannonsburg Academy, had a son called Joe, who was on intimate terms with old "Cardinal" McMillan. The doctor, meeting the young scapegrace, said, "Joe, can you tell me the difference between you and the devil?" Joe answered, in reply, that the devil wears a cocked hat, a low flapped doublet, a coat of Continental cut, breeches and shoes with knee- and shoe-buckles, and I wear pantaloons and clothing of modern style: he described the doctor. The old gentleman was loth to change in anything, in even his dress, and he wore his cocked hat and shoe-buckles long after others had laid theirs away. Innovations were harsh to him. He insulted Colonel Morgan because his family rode to church in a kind of cariole, and seeing a woman who first used the convenience of an umbrella during a rain, asked what that woman was doing with her petticoat on a stick. He, however, was not alone in his ignorance of the use of, to us, such an indispensable article, for when Alexander Craig was one day carrying an umbrella, which had been presented to his mother by a gentleman of Philadelphia, to meeting at Congruity Church, a good old elder, after vainly surmising what the queer thing could be, accosted Craig with, "Es that the thing ye survey the lan' wi' ?"

The head-dress of the men was usually a beaver or wool hat. These were made by hand, and were so lasting that the heir was never out of the hope of a small share, at least, of his father's personal estate.

We presume that no fashion-writer in a lady's magazine would attempt to describe the attire of a lady under, say two pages octavo, nonpareil, while perhaps twenty lines would be sufficient in which to describe the dress of a gentleman. We shall be compelled, from our dearth of words and sparsity of ideas, to reverse the order without apology.

The universal dress of the women of our early times was a short gown and a petticoat; the material was linsey-woolsey in summer and all wool in winter. Their head-dress was, especially when they traveled or went to town, the same as the men's, that is, a beaver or wool hat. Sometimes a colored handkerchief was curiously tied over the head. A smaller home-made linen handkerchief, tied so that the one point came down from the neck between the shoulders, was a quite common extravagance of vanity at parties or at church. Perhaps the majority of the ancient matrons went barefoot in summer; in winter they wore moccasins, overshoes, or shoe-packs. The better-off sort, who brought their goods with them or had them sent from the East, sometimes wore silk stockings. Among the articles stolen by the Indians from one of the houses at Hannastown at the time of its destruction was a silk dress.[1] Forty years after the first settlements of the county, silk, among the ladies of the gentry, was the dress. Dimity was highly in favor with those who were able, and of it were made gowns, aprons, and caps. The fashionable ladies of the town of Greensburg between 1800 and 1812, when they danced in the ball-rooms of the public-houses or helped to make the audience before the graduating class of the academy, wore silk gowns fitted tightly to the body and arms, the sleeves buttoned to the elbows, had high-heeled shoes, had their hair powdered, and their faces stuck over with black square bits of court-plaster.

It was not, relatively, until a late period that calico became a common or every-day dress for women. For many years after the date which corresponds with our first settlements calico was regarded as an expensive fabric. The manufacture of calico by a system of hand-spinning had originated in England not more than a hundred years before that, and there, during our Revolution, the only place it was manufactured, it was so heavily taxed that it was out of the reach of the poor. At the close of the century in Europe it was neither cheap nor common. It was not till some time after the invention of the spinning-jenny by Arkwright that it came into use at all among the common people. In our county at one time after the war of Eighteen-Twelve calico was one dollar a yard, then, about 1825, it fell to thirty and forty cents, and later rose to fifty. When it took fifty pounds of butter and two barrels of eggs to get a chintz-pattern wrapper, it was nothing to hide away, and we can pardon the vanity which hung such articles of apparel up to public inspection at the head of the bed, not far from the horse-gears.

THE woods at that time produced many fruits which are now known to us but as luxuries. Besides blackberries and whortleberries, which attained to double the size we now see them and of a corresponding lusciousness, there grew wild plums and haws in such quantities that the ground in places lay covered with them. The peach, sheltered from the frost by the protecting forests, found a kindly soil, and on the new land produced regularly a good crop, in like manner the cherry and the hardier species of apple; while of fox-grapes and chicken-grapes a large quantity was allowed to waste yearly for want of using. The sugar-tree, a species of maple indigenous to our soil, grew thickly on the eastern slopes of the hills and in the valleys. To secure the sap of the tree and render it into sugar and syrup was an easy matter, for the Indians themselves, knowing the saccharine qualities of this fluid, could, with the use of pails to carry it, and of kettles to boil it, manufacture their sugary of the excise was, as we have seen, considerably more than of most farms. There were then still-houses literally anywhere, nearly every fifth or sixth farm having a copper still. Judge Veech states that at one time there were five hundred and seventy-two stills in the western counties. The farmer who had one manufactured the whiskey for his neighbor who had none, on the shares. So much grain was left, and so much whiskey returned. These still-houses were small affairs, sometimes of only one little still, but oftener of two, the one for singlings and the other for doublings. The stills were set up in the cellar, in the upper part of the spring-house, or in a near out-house.

As a consequence the use of whiskey was universal. The quality was good, the taste pleasant, its effect agreeable. Store-keepers kept liquor on their counters and sold it in their stores, and the women customers used it as well as the men. Farmers kept barrels of it in their cellars. It was sometimes drank with tansy, mint, or maple-sugar, but mostly taken straight. It was good for fevers, it was good for a decline, it was good for ague, it was good for snake-bites. There was nothing named in the materia medica but old whiskey possessed some of its curative properties. On the testimony of Col. Crockett, it made one warm in winter and cool in summer. It was used at all gatherings.[1] Bottles of it were set out on the table at christenings and at wakes. At funerals in the winter season huge coffee-boilers and buckets of warm whiskey-punch were passed around and the people invited to drink, and tin-cups were filled and carried from time to time to the bearers. Ministers drank it. The biographers of Rev. McMillan, who ascribe all virtues to his character, relate the following incident. When on his way to Presbytery in company with the Rev. Joseph Patterson they stopped to water their horses at a public-house, when to compensate the landlord for his courtesy they stopped to take a drink. When the whiskey was poured into the glass Mr. Patterson proposed to ask a blessing before they drank. This was not objected to by the doctor; but as the grace was protracted he not only drank his own glass off but reached for Mr. Patterson's and drank his too. When his brother looked blankly after he had finished, the "cardinal" said to him that he must not henceforth forget to watch as well as pray. On an occasion when Bishop Onderdonk came to Greensburg to administer confirmation, before going to church he went into the bar-room of Rhorer's hotel in full canonicals and called for and drank off a tumbler of strong brandy without giving offense to the faithful. Rev. Father McGirr's drink was whiskey-punch, of which it is said he could drink with any of his day without giving scandal. These examples are cited merely for the object of illustrating how wide-spread was the custom of using stimulants.

As a consequence whiskey was used by nearly all. The government gave regular rations of it to the soldiers, and these rations were increased at the time of the insurrection, a bait thrown out to the people to do their distilling in accordance with the law. At a time much later than the era of the Revolution, when money was scarce and labor plenty, it is said that many farmers could have the services of laboring men during the whole of the winter season for their bed and board. They went to work with a dram of whiskey and tansy and a piece of bread and butter. On this they worked till breakfast. At every meal the bottle was taken by the neck; for whiskey was all that whiskey is now and coffee, tea, and beer besides.

We may go even farther than we have gone in producing examples to show how wide-spread the habit of using domestic liquors had grown among those people. It was a habit easily acquired, because the use of the spirit was general, its quality attractive, and its constituent substances pure and unadulterated. The heavy overhung skies of their long, dreary winters, their exposed occupations, and the scarceness of attractive or agreeable diversions are sufficient causes for its usage, which although general was not inordinate. In addition to these reasons which are apparent to us they had others of their own. The aptness of quite a majority of these people at quoting Scripture texts, particularly those found in the Hebrew writings, is well known. Some of these texts they had at their tongue's end, and could refer to them on any and every occasion. They therefore doubtless cited the sixth and seventh verses of the thirty-first chapter of Proverbs, "Give strong drink unto him that is ready to perish, and wine unto those that be of heavy hearts. Let him drink, and forget his poverty, and remember his misery no more." This text, by the way, was a familiar one to the Scotch of the time of Burns, and as many of them were familiar with his songs, they no doubt had by heart the one dedicated to Scotch drink:

"Thou clears the head o' doited Lear,
Thou cheers the heart o' droopin' Care,
Thou strings the nerves o' Labor sair
At's weary toil;
Thou ever brightens dark Despair
Wi' gloomy smile."

There was a time in the early history of Southwestern Pennsylvania when whiskey was the one commodity that had a standard value, and all the mediums of barter and exchange, such as corn, salt, tobacco, and so forth, were valued in accordance with the amount of whiskey they would fetch. "Old rye" was exchanged at the grocery for tea, coffee, household utensils, and farming implements. At all public gatherings it gurgled copiously from all sorts of jugs, and was guzzled by all sorts of men, women, and children.

[1] In an account of the Fourth of July celebration at Washington Furnace in 1811, printed at length in the Register, it says, "After partaking of a handsome and wholesome repast, and drinking some whiskey mixed with pure water," etc. Delicately put, but "O tempora, O mores!"

JAMES J. McMILLEN, a retired farmer and leading citizen of Ridge township, Van Wert county, Ohio, son of James W. and Mary (Leach) McMillen, was born in Somerset county, Pa., December 23, 1827. The father was also a native of Somerset county, Pa., and a son of William McMillen. The father of William McMillen was a native of Ireland, who settled in Pennsylvania. William McMillen received a common school education and learned the shoemaker's trade. He also was born in Somerset county, Pa. His wife, a Miss McKnight before marriage, was also a native of Ireland and when a child came with her parents to Somerset county, Pa. They were the parents of six children; viz.: James W.; John, who in his youth went south; William, who was killed by the bite of a dog; Jane, wife of Zachriah White, of Somerset county, Pa.; Nancy, wife of John Stanton; and a daughter, who died in her twentieth year. Dennis McKnight, father of Mrs. McMillen, was a corporal in the American army during the Revolution, was in the battle of Bunker Hill, and served to the end of the war.

James W. McMillen was born December 22, 1794, was reared a farmer and learned the shoemaker's trade from his father. He pursued his trade, however, only so far as to provide shoes for his own family. To his marriage with Mary Leach were born the following children: Martha, wife of John Mumaugh of Cowden, Ill.; William, deceased in infancy; John, also deceased in infancy; Joseph L., a merchant and miller of Owaneco, Ill.; Jane, widow of Abraham East, a farmer of Washington township, Van Wert, county, Ohio; James J., the subject of this sketch; Sydney A., deeeased in childhood; Ephriam, broom manufacturer of Defiance, Ohio; Eli, of Cowden, Ill.; Miranda, deceased wife of George Clutter, also deceased. Mary (Leach) McMillen was born in 1796, in Pennsylvania, and was a member of the Methodist Episcopal church. In 1830 James W. McMillen emigrated from Somerset county, Pa., to Knox county, Ohio, making the trip in a wagon, in which he brought his family and household goods. He entered a tract of 200 acres of government land, and established his young family in a rented house in Brownsville, while he cleared a space and built a house of logs on his land. For twelve years he was identified with the agricultural interests of that county. He then disposed of his Knox county farm and moved to Allen county, where he purchased a farm on which he lived the remainder of his life, dying in March, 1880, having lost his wife on March 27, 1878. Politically, he was a stanch supporter of the democracy. He united with the United Brethern church, in early life, but later joined the Methodist Episcopal church. Associated with his father he assisted in building the famous first national pike between Philadelphia and Pittsburg. He was a man of fine physique, possessed unusual force of character, was kind and benevolent in his practices, upright and honorable in his dealings, and a leader of men in the community in which he lived.

James J. McMillen was educated in the common schools of Knox and Allen counties, then taught in a little log school-house, furnished with puncheon benches and slab floor. He also engaged in teaching in Conrad district, Marion township, Allen county, Ohio, where he taught two terms. In 1852 he spent one term in Delaware university, Delaware, Ohio, after which he again engaged in teaching. With the money thus earned he attended a select school at Allentown, Ohio. September 7, 1854, he was united in marriage to Miss Harriet Gilliland, daughter of James G. and Margaret (Lawson) Gilliland. To their union ten children were born, viz: Joseph Warren, a prominent farmer and produce dealer of Union township; Alice, widow of M. D. Mann, and living with her two children in Van Wert; Phebe, who died in infancy; Alonzo B., a prominent lawyer of Albuquerque, N. M.; Ida, wife of Thomas Pollock, who lives near Middlepoint, Ohio; Charles S., farmer and hay dealer of Woodburn, Ind.; Walter, who died in childhood; twin brothers, Albert and Delbert, of Van Wert county, Ohio, and Hattie, the wife of Edward Carlo of Van Wert. The reader is here invited to peruse the history of the Gilliland family, to be found in another part of this volume.

In 1852, Mr. McMillen engaged in general merchandising at Elida, Ohio, to which he added, in 1856, a grain and produce business. The following year he sold his store, and gave his entire attention to the buying and selling of grain, in which he was quite successful. In 1858 he purchased sixty acres of land in Allen county and began farming and dealing in stock. This he continued until 1860, when he moved to his present home, in Ridge township. He has cleared his farm from the woods, improved it with a neat residence and substantial farm buildings, and everywhere it bears the marks of his careful management and cultivation. In December, 1894, accompanied by his wife, he made a tour of the great west, visiting his sons in Illinois and New Mexico, and the incidents and observations of western life, written by him and published at the time in the Van Wert Times, show him to be a man of keen perception and careful thought. He is not a member of any church, though broad in his charity and liberal in his support of every public good. He was for years a prominent member of the Masonic fraternity, Lima lodge, No. 205, and is held in high esteem by its members. He is also a member of Ridge grange, P. of H., and has done much to advance the agricultural interests of the community in which he lives. Politically he supports the democratic party, and wields a strong influence in the ranks of that party. In his political associations he is above suspicion, and courts victory only by fair means, never buying or selling a vote. He has been honored by the office of township clerk, though he dislikes to have his name before the public. Both he and his wife engaged in teaching in their youth, and every child, with one exception, followed their example. In the record of this family there has been but one death in sixty-two years. No man stands higher in the confidence and esteem of his neighbors than Mr. McMillen, and all his works have been crowned with success.

JOSEPH WARREN McMILLEN, grain dealer and shipper of Van Wert, Ohio, and farmer of Union township, was born in Elida, Allen county, Ohio, July 15, 1855, a son of James J. and Harriet (Gilliland) McMillen. The family came to Van Wert county and settled in Ridge township when our subject was but five years old, and here he grew to manhood and was educated. He assisted on the home farm until twenty-one years of age, and was then for four years engaged in teaching school in York and Ridge townships: resuming agriculture, for five years he farmed in Ridge township, and then purchased a farm of 240 acres in Union township in section No. 16, which is cleared and well improved, and underdrained thoroughly by some 60,000 rods of tiling—his chief product being hay. In 1885, in company with his father, he began buying and shipping hay in large quantities, and this partnership lasted two years, since when our subject has been doing business on his individual account. In 1894 he handled about 600 carloads of straw and hay, beside other products. He buys grain at Cavett in considerable quantities, and shipped eighty carload of shelled corn between October, 1894, and close of the year. He employs four balers, who scour the country for hay, buy it up and bale it on the spot, as they take with them the proper machinery. His office in Van Wert is on North Walnut street, near the Pennsylvania railway line, where, during the proper season, he gives due attention to the buying and shipping of grain, hay and straw.

The marriage of Mr. McMillen took place in Van Wert, April 15, 1879, to Jennie Wilmore, who was born in Mercer county, Ohio, and is the daughter of J. Wilmore. This union has been blessed with the birth of six children, named Dale, Bernice, Nellie, Lewis, Ralph and Ferris. The parents are both members of the Presbyterian church, to the tenets of which they strictly adhere. Fraternally Mr. McMillen is a chapter Mason, and in politics he is a stanch democrat, but not a partisan for the sake of office, as he finds a business life to be more profitable than office seeking. He is upright in all his business transactions, is liberal and useful as a citizen, and in his social relations is all that could be desired.

JOHN MARK, a prosperous farmer of Jennings township, Van Wert county, Ohio, and a hunter, is a son of Allen L. and Frances (Kirkpatrick) Mark, and was born in Allen county, Ohio, January 8, 1857. Allen L., the father, was born in Fayette county, Ohio, January 8, 1824, and was a son of Peter Mark, a native of Germany, who married Mary Magdalene Lagore, a native of France, who became the mother of twelve children, of whom three—Abner, of Missouri, Manigum, of Iowa, and Mathew W., of Fayette county, Ohio—are the only survivors, the father of our subject, having been the youngest of the twelve.

Peter Mark, grandfather of our subject, was a farmer and a very early settler of Fayette county. Allen L., his son, was reared a farmer in Fayette county, and August 17, 1845, married Frances Kirkpatrick, who was born in the county named December 2, 1826, daughter of John, who was born in Pennsylvania in 1790, and Elizabeth (Bush) Kirkpatrick, who was born in Virginia in 1806. To Allen L. and wife were born nine children, viz: Jane, wife of Archibald Findlay, a farmer of Auglaize county; Simmons, who died at Savannah, Ga., while in the army; Moab, of Oklahoma; Andrew, of Jackson Centre, Ohio; Elizabeth, deceased wife of Pierce Wright; John, our subject; Joseph, of York township; and Marcus and Merriott, twins, of Jennings township. John Kirkpatrick came down the Ohio river on a flat-boat in 1795 with his parents; after he grew to manhood he entered a tract of land in Fayette county, as already indicated, and there died in the faith of the Presbyterian church, while his wife was a member of the Methodist Episcopal church.

After his marriage, Allen L. Mark located in Allen county, and in 1851 entered 120 acres of land, which he cleared and improved, and in 1862 returned to Fayette county, where he resided one year, and then came to Jennings township, Van Wert county, where he farmed until his death, March 12, 1887. He was a republican in politics, and very popular, serving his fellow-citizens as township treasurer for a number of years, and also as township clerk and as justice of the peace; he was also very

Subject: Re: I need DAR help

Hi Janet,

I guess I won't see you Saturday. How about this cold weather? I'm ready for some temps above freezing. At least the sun was shining today.

The number 88476 is the number for member Alice McMillen Glenn, born in Elida, spouse H.C. Glenn, chapter 4052OH, which would be the Isaac Van Wert Chapter. That is a very low number, indicating that it is an old number. She went inactive 1 July 1930. The website says that the pre-1985 Member Archive has only limited information and that more details will be added in the future. That is about all I could get from the web site. I checked and she was never a member of our chapter.

As for James McMillen, there are several James McMillens. We would have to determine which one she descends from. Since Alice McMillen Glenn's application is so old, it could not be used as a source for a supplemental.

However, I would suggest contacting the Isaac Chapter and asking them for a copy of Alice's application. That way you would know which James McMillen she claimed. It should give his vital dates, wife's name, some children's names, and state of service. More recent members may still be claiming this patriot and the lady could still order a copy of a more recent application. Van Wert should send a copy for nothing.

Does that help? Let me know if I can help any more or help her.

Karen

James McMillin came from Northern Ireland or Scotland and settled in Dauphin County PA (taken from History of Bedford & Somerset County PA). He married Eleanor Wright, daughter of James & Margaret Wright, on 9 May 1757 by Rev. John Roan, pastor of Paxtang Presbyterian Church, Dauphin County PA.

James served in the Revolutionary War under Capt. Wm. Allen, Ninth Batallion, Lancaster County Militia. His son John also served in the Revolutionary War. There is a stone monument in the park at Confluence PA which honors them. (The pioneer name for Confluence was Turkeyfoot).

Children of James & Eleanor:
James; Margatha; Jonathon/John, m. Nancy Kilpatrick; William (Green); Jane, m. Patrick Nelson.

Both James and Eleanor are buried in "Paddytown" Cemetery (now known as Younkin Cemetery), so named for the Scotch-Irish settlement in Turkeyfoot Twp., Somerset Co. PA.

Rest in peace, my gr-gr-gr-gr grandfather.

JAMES POWER, D.D., first visited the new settlements in 1774. He was born in Chester County, Pa., in 1746, graduated at Princeton in 1766, licensed by the Presbytery of New Castle June 24, 1772. In 1776 he was ordained by the same Presbytery sine titulo, the reason being assigned that "he was about to remove to the western parts of this Province." Mr. Power moved across the mountains with all his family and household effects packed on horseback. The minister carried the eldest daughter on a pillion behind him, and the youngest in his arms. The two other daughters were seated in baskets hung on either side of another horse, the mother on a third, and the household effects on other horses. After performing missionary work for some five years he became pastor of the churches of Sewickley and Mount Pleasant. In 1787 he was released from the charge of the Sewickley Church, but continued with Mount Pleasant until 1817. He died Aug. 5, 1830, aged eighty-five years. Mr. Power was of medium height, erect, slender, graceful in manner, and extremely neat in dress; as a preacher he was clear, methodical, and evangelical.

JOHN MCMILLAN, D.D., was the next man on the ground, of Irish descent, born at Fagg's Manor in 1752, graduated at Princeton, licensed in 1744. He first visited the West in 1775. He returned the next year, but owing to Indian difficulties did not remove his family to now Washington County until 1778, when he took charge of the congregations of Chartiers and Pigeon Creek. From the latter he was dismissed about the year 1800; of the former he continued pastor until about 1830. He died at Cannonsburg, Pa., Nov. 16, 1833, in the eighty-first year of his age. Dr. McMillan was rough and brusque in his personal appearance and address, even slovenly. He was six feet in height, rough-hewn in features, and with a voice that was like the rumbling of thunder.

THADDEUS DODD was born in New Jersey, March, 1740. His parents were from Connecticut. He graduated at Princeton in 1773, licensed in 1775, came to the West in 1777. He became pastor of the churches of ' Upper and Lower Ten-Mile," in Washington County. Died May 20, 1793, in the fifty-fourth year of his age.

All parties were of Dorchester County /MD. John Caffe in 1774 bought part of a tract named "Wright's Venture" from James Wright and Nancy, his wife. In October 1777, John Caffey and Suffiah, his wife, sold the same tract to Daniel James Brooks. No further references to Caffeys were found in the McAllister Abstracts of Dorchester Land Records, and no records were found in the microfilm indexes to Caroline County land records. Very early mention is made in Gustavus Skordas"'The Early Settlers of Maryland" to Rebecca Coffee, who had been "transported to Maryland" in 1675. Also noted is Robert Coffee, shoemaker, who immigrated to Somerset County Maryland in 1680. Somerset County in Maryland's Eastern Shore was erected in 1666, and (with Talbot) was a parent county of Dorchester, which was formed in 1699. Whether or not Robert and Rebecca are pertinent to our research, it does seem very likely that the John Caffey who bought land in 1774 and sold it in 1777 might be the same John Caffey who gave his age as 39 between 1764 and 1767. That would place his date of birth at about 1725 and 1728. And that makes him a likely son of the Michael Caffey whose Dorchester County will was dated 1754. It also seems to make him, possibly, the John Caffey who died in Guilford County, North Carolina in 1785... ...John Caffey probably married first about 1750 in Maryland, Suffiah or Sophia, last name unknown, who died sometime after 1777. Estate papers of John Caffey in the North Carolina Archives refer to his widow Nancy and say she was the step-mother of Michael. Suffiah was probably the mother of John Caffey's children...

NOTES AND QUERIES.

Historical, Biographical and Genealogical.

CLXXIX.

Garber's Mill.—During the Revolution, 1774 to 1787, John Garber was the owner of the mill at Fort Hunter. In the spring of the latter year he sold his land and improvements to Archibald McAlister, of Londonderry township.

Sponsler, or Spinceyler. — Is the former the English of the latter? Among the Court Records of 1779, we find that Andrew Sponsler or Spinceyler, late of Clark's creek, left a wife Christina, and children:

- i. John.
- ii. Andrew.
- iii. George.
- iv. Henry.
- v. Rachel.
- vi. Mary.

Wright.—James Wright, of Hanover township, died during the Revolution. From a deed of release executed in 1793, we find the following as his children:

- i. Jemima; m. William Wharton, residing in Russell county, Va.
- ii. Margaret; m. Robert McCoy, residing in Pendleton county, Va.
- iii. Jane; m. —— Russell, residing in Orange county, N. C.

- v. Eleanor; James McMillen, residing in Turkey Foot, Bedford county, Pa.

THE CUMBERLAND VALLEY.

Contributions to Its Biographical History.

Alexander, John.

John Alexander was born about 1750 in Cumberland county. He was a farmer by occupation. When the war of the Revolution broke out, he became an active participant, and was in service during the Jersey campaigns of 1776 and 1777. He commanded a company in 1778 on the expedition against the Indians on the West Branch, and was a brave and useful officer. After the war closed he was commissioned an officer of the militia, and rose to the rank of colonel. He died at his farm in West Pennsboro' township, Cumberland county, on the 4th of August, 1804. The Gazette thus alludes to his character: "He lived universally beloved, and his loss to society is much lamented for his character in every relation, and throughh the various scenes of life was upright and unexceptionable."

Armstrong Joseph.

Joseph Armstrong, son of Joseph and Jennett Armstrong, was born in 1739 in the Cumberland Valley, his parents having been among the first settlers. Next to his relative, Gen. John Armstrong, he was the most prominent man west of the Susquehanna during Provincial times. From 1752 to 1755 he represented his county in the General Assembly, but refused to serve longer on account of the Indian incursions following the defeat of Braddock. He accepted the commission of captain in the service and during the French and Indian war was a brave ranger. He was under Forbes and Bouquet during their expeditions westward, and rendered important aid. As would naturally be expected, when the war of the Revolution began he took an active part in the struggle, and was colonel of the Fifth Battalion, Cumberland County Associators, in 1778. He was at Trenton and Brandywine and Germantown. At the close of the war he retired to his farm in Hamilton township, now Franklin county, where he died on the 29th of August, 1811, and his remains rest within the shadows of Rocky Spring church, of which he was a member and a ruling elder.

Findlay, John.

John Findlay, eldest child of Samuel Findlay and Jane Smith his wife, was born near Mercersburg, Cumberland, now Franklin county, March 31, 1766. Although only in his tenth year when the War of the Revolution began, before its close he was, although a mere stripling, in active service on the frontiers. He became quite prominent in public affairs, although he declined office in favor of his brother William, Governor of Pennsylvania, and U. S. Senator, until 1819 when he consented to be nominated for Congress, to which he was elected three terms. He died at his residence in Franklin county November 5, 1838, and is buried at Falling Spring church graveyard.

As would naturally be expected, when the war of the Rovolution began he took an active part in the struggle, and was colonel of the Fifth Battalion, Cumberland County Associators, in 1778. He was at Trenton and Brandywine and Germantown. At the close of the war he retired to his farm in Hamilton township, now Franklin county, where he died on the 29th of August, 1811, and his remains rest within the shadows of Rocky Spring church, of which he was a member and a ruling elder.

FINDLAY, JOHN.

John Findlay, eldest child of Samuel Findlay and Jane Smith his wife, was born near Mercersburg, Cumberland, now Franklin county, March 31, 1766. Although only in his tenth year when the War of the Revolution began, before its close he was, although a mere stripling, in active service on the frontiers. He became quite prominent in public affairs, although he declined office in favor of his brother William, Governor of Pennsylvania, and U. S. Senator, until 1819 when he consented to be nominated for Congress, to which he was elected three terms. He died at his residence in Franklin county November 5, 1838, and is buried at Falling Spring church graveyard.

NOTES AND QUERIES.

Historical, Biographical and Genealogical.

CLXXIX.

Garber's Mill.—During the Revolution, 1774 to 1787, John Garber was the owner of the mill at Fort Hunter. In the spring of the latter year he sold his land and improvements to Archibald McAlister, of Londonderry township.

Sponsler, or Spinceyler. — Is the former the English of the latter? Among the Court Records of 1779, we find that Andrew Sponsler or Spinceyler, late of Clark's creek, left a wife Christina, and children:

i. John.
ii. Andrew.
iii. George.
iv. Henry.
v. Rachel.
vi. Mary.

Wright.—James Wright, of Hanover township, died during the Revolution. From a deed of release executed in 1793, we find the following as his children:

i. Jemima; m. William Wharton, residing in Russell county, Va.

ii. Margaret; m. Robert McCoy, residing in Pendleton county, Va.

iii. Jane; m. —— Russell, residing in Orange county, N. C.

iv. [a dau.]; m. John Malcolm and had John, jr., residing in Pendleton county, Va.

v. Eleanor; James McMillen, residing in Turkey Foot, Bedford county, Pa.

THE CUMBERLAND VALLEY.

Contributions to Its Biographical History.

Alexander, John.

John Alexander was born about 1750 in Cumberland county. He was a farmer by occupation. When the war of the Revolution broke out, he became an active participant, and was in service during the Jersey campaigns of 1776 and 1777. He commanded a company in 1778 on the expedition against the Indians on the West Branch, and was a brave and useful officer. After the war closed he was commissioned an officer of the militia, and rose to the rank of colonel. He died at his farm in West Pennsboro' township, Cumberland county, on the 4th of August, 1804. The Gazette thus alludes to his character: "He lived universally beloved, and his loss to society is much lamented for his character in every relation, and throughh the various scenes of life was upright and unexceptionable."

Armstrong Joseph.

Joseph Armstrong, son of Joseph and Jennett Armstrong, was born in 1739 in the Cumberland Valley, his parents having been among the first settlers. Next to his relative, Gen. John Armstrong, he was the most prominent man west of the Susquehanna during Provincial times. From 1752 to 1755 he represented his county in the General Assembly, but refused to serve longer on account of the Indian incursions following the defeat of Braddock. He accepted the commission of captain in the service and during the French and Indian war was a brave ranger. He was under Forbes and Bouquet during their expeditions westward, and rendered important aid. As would naturally be expected, when the war of the Revolution began he took an active part in the struggle, and was colonel of the Fifth Battalion, Cumberland County Associators, in 1778. He was at Trenton and Brandywine and Germantown. At the close of the war he retired to his farm in Hamilton township, now Franklin county, where he died on the 29th of August, 1811, and his remains rest within the shadows of Rocky Spring church, of which he was a member and a ruling elder.

Findlay, John.

John Findlay, eldest child of Samuel Findlay and Jane Smith his wife, was born near Mercersburg, Cumberland, now Franklin county, March 31, 1766. Although only in his tenth year when the War of the Revolution began, before its close he was, although a mere stripling, in active service on the frontiers. He became quite prominent in public affairs, although he declined office in favor of his brother William, Governor of Pennsylvania, and U. S. Senator, until 1819 when he consented to be nominated for Congress, to which he was elected three terms. He died at his residence in Franklin county November 5, 1838, and is buried at Falling Spring church graveyard.

James McMillen 1735-1821 was indentured to Thomas McMillen in Hanover township of Chester County, later Lancaster and now Dauphin County Pennsylvania. He is listed on the Chester county tax records from 1750 through 1784. After his seven year indenture, he married the daughter of the next door neighbor, Eleanor Wright, daughter of James Wright 1716-1764 and Margaret his wife who died in 1793. They were married in the Paxtang Presbyterian Church by Reverand Roan on May 7, 1757. Eleanors sisters: Margaret who married a William Moore June 01, 1761 then , Jane who married a Russell, one who married John Malcolm, and Jemima who married William Wharton.

Then in the WRIGHT marriages in Paxtang Presbyterian Church by Reverand Roan there was a William Wright to Margaret McCord 1791, could this be the son of James Wright we need to have fathered Ann Wright Bayes. Not sure why William would have been left out of deed but he may have died before or already received his portion when his father died in 1764. The land must have been willed to James' wife, Margaret till her death in 1793 and the daughters got a share??? Of course this is just speculation.

Arrival of James McMillen

about 1760, Pennsylvania

James McMillen arrived late in 1749 in the household of George and Agnes McMillen (this was either an uncle or a cousin). He was listed in the 1750 List of Households and the date crossed out and replaced with 1749. He was listed as a weaver and an indenture. He would have been 14 years of age. He was listed in the church records as a Presbyterian and a member of the congregation right after George and Agnes. He married in that church in 1757, by his wife's brother's son-in-law, Reverend Elder, the fighting preacher who captained a unit in the Revolutionary War. James' wife, Eleanor Wright, lived next door to George with her sisters and brother in the household of James Wright. It is assumed that Thomas was the son of George and not James. James' family never used the names of George or Thomas in naming their children or grandchildren. James and family moved to Somerset County, Pennsylvania in 1789. Most of their children moved with them. There are tax records supporting them in the town of Turkeyfoot. Information received 5/2010 from Michael Wilmore McMillen, near cousin of Pyron Galloway "Duke" McMillen.

Birth: Aug. 20, 1735Death: Mar., 1821
Somerset County
Pennsylvania, USA
James McMillin came from Northern Ireland or Scotland and settled in Dauphin County PA (taken from History of Bedford & Somerset County PA). He married Eleanor Wright, daughter of James & Margaret Wright, on 9 May 1757 by Rev. John Roan, pastor of Paxtang Presbyterian Church, Dauphin County PA.

James served in the Revolutionary War under Capt. Wm. Allen, Ninth Batallion, Lancaster County Militia. His son John also served in the Revolutionary War. There is a stone monument in the park at Confluence PA which honors them. (The pioneer name for Confluence was Turkeyfoot).

Children of James & Eleanor:
James; Margatha; Jonathon/John, m. Nancy Kilpatrick; William (Green); Jane, m. Patrick Nelson.

Both James and Eleanor are buried in "Paddytown" Cemetery (now known as Younkin Cemetery), so named for the Scotch-Irish settlement in Turkeyfoot Twp., Somerset Co. PA.

Richard PINKERTON. Born Circa 1740 . Died 18163 . Occupation Shoemaker372 . He apparently came to Canada from Northern Ireland circa 1760 and settled in Chanceford township, York County, Pennsylvania, where he was living in 1772. RICHARD PINKERTON, SR.,(According to RD Pinkerton) came to this country in the 1760's. He is believed to have been born in either Scotland or Northern Ireland. He settled first in Chanceford Twp of York Co., PA, where he is noted on a tax list in 1772. He and his wife, Margaret (some sources say Martha Wright) were recorded as the parents of Richard Pinkerton, Jr., who was born July 21, 1775. Richard Jr. was christened in the Guinston Presbyterian Church, Muddy Creek PA on August 13, 1775. Near the end of the Revolutionary War, Richard Sr. came to Turkeyfoot Twp of Bedford Co.,PA (would become Somerset Co.). Richard Sr., first appeared on the tax assessment roll for 1781.There is a census record for 1788/1790; it is a census on a table that is a consolidation of several sources, and indicates who resided in the Turkeyfoot region and when--up to 1800; Richard appears on this table as a shoemaker by trade and as appearing on the 1796 tax list. On February 1, 1797 Richard Sr. purchased 300 acres from James Love, but this propery has been identified as being some distance from the Pinkerton holdings along the west side of the Casselman River. (One source has names and numbers taken from a UpperTurkeyfoot Warrent Map which shows his name on two parcels , 259 acres/107 acres, surveyed in 1799/1811 with Warrent dates of 1789/?; Warrent numbers 866.B/866.A located on E River Midway. RD Pinkerton further states he purchased a 26 acre parcel on Bark Cabin Run from Francis Connelly, which appeared to be his final purchase of land. Also that he appears as Head of Family in the Census Listings for 1790, 1800, and 1810. RD Pinkerton's info about Richard Sr. on Tax Assessment Rolls show he owned 50 acres on the 1781/1783/1784 Rolls; County taxes paid in 1793: 0 pounds, 10 shillings, 1 pence; 1796, Rate 3; $00 acres of land, with 45 acres cleared. Shown as a farmer owning 2 horses, 3 horned cattle and 2 houses (houses were evaluated at $762.50 and the tax was $4.98); 1798 listed as a shoemaker in addition to farming. 1815, last appearance on the tax records. He lived in a cabin, evaluated at $20.10 and owned 1 cow. He served as a juror in various court actions in 1796, 1797, 1800 and 1807. In 1797 he was involved in a capias lawsuit against Daniel McCarthur and in 1802 he was the defendant in a suit brought by James Connor. (Testifying for the defendant in the latter case were John Pinkerton, Matthew Pinkerton, Richard Pinkerton and others.) Although there is a mention of a Pinketon Family Grave yard, where Richard Sr. was probably buried about 1815, RD Pinkerton could not find one, and states that the local belief is that it was destroyed by stripmining operations. No will or estate settlement for Richard Pinketon, Sr. has been found. note CHILDREN: Only the parentage and dates of birth for Richard Jr.

was born June 4, 1788, in Brothersvalley. Jacob, like his father, John Hauger, and his son, William Hauger, was a farmer by occupation. Jacob later met and married Elizabeth Knepper (daughter of John and Anna Marie Glessner Knepper). Elizabeth Knepper Hauger's father, John Knepper, was born in America in 1763. He was a shoemaker in Brothersvalley, where he died in 1817. He and Anna Marie Glessner were the parents of 13 children. It should be noted that of these children 2 became ministers, 1 a marble cutter, 1 a sheriff and associate judge of Somerset County and another a soldier in the War of 1812. They were, indeed a remarkable family. The first American ancestor of Elizabeth Knepper Hauger was John Peter Knepper, who was born in Austria in 1681. In 1698, he came to Pennsylvania and established his home.

John Hauger, father of Jacob Hauger, was born in Prussia in 1749. After coming to America, he married Maria Barbara Miller, born in 1749, died 1826. When she was young her family and home in Berks County were destroyed by Indians. She and her brother were held captives for 8 years. In Philadelphia they were exchanged for an Indian chief that had been captured. Her brother returned to the Indians and was never heard of again. John Hauger served in the Revolution under Washington in Captain Ladick's company, Berks County. He remained on his farm at Beechdale until his death, December 6, 1813.

CHRISTIAN LEHR

I am Dorothy Everline Lehr. I grew up in Somerset County Pennsylvania, on a farm one mile west of Wellersburg. I was four years old when we moved to this farm where my father was born and grew up. On September 4, 1927, I was married to Christian Albert Lehr from near Frostburg, Maryland. My husband fought with the army in France in World War I. After our marriage we lived in Maryland for several years, then in March, 1934, we moved to Wellersburg. My husband worked as a millwright for the Celanese Corporation of America. We had a son Stanley and a daughter Helen. Stanley and his wife Charlotte have three children and four grandchildren; they live in Hyndman, Pennsylvania. Helen and her husband Robert Klink have five children and two grandchildren; they live near Mercer, Pennsylvania.

My husband died June 25, 1957. After his death I worked for almost ten years making draperies for several Interior Decorators. On December 31, 1966, I became the clerk in charge of the Rural Branch Post Office at Wellersburg. I still hold this office.

I am a member of the United Methodist Church. I have many interests and hobbies. For many years I have been interested in genealogy and have been working on various branches of my family, especially on the history of the Everline family. My sister Florence Stevanus was also interested in starting an annual Everline Reunion. We were able to have the first one in 1956. It is held each year on the last Sunday in July at the Firemans' picnic ground in Wellersburg.

My great grandfather Andrew Everline came from Germany in August, 1846, together with his wife, two small sons and his wife's mother. They lived in Allegany County, Maryland, for a few years, then, in 1854, they bought a home in Wellersburg. About five years later they bought a farm in Southampton Township, Somerset County. This farm extended to the top of the Little Allegany Mountain which forms the border between Somerset and Bedford counties. The "Everline Rocks" high rock formation on the top of this mountain are named for Andrew Everline.

Several ancestors of my mother were early settlers in Allegany County, Maryland, Taylor County, West Virginia, and Somerset County, Pennsylvania.

My great-great-great grandfather Reuben Taylor from New York fought in the Revolution and soon after the war came to Maryland and bought land described as being Westward of Fort Cumberland. Another great-great grandfather John Prunty, together with his brother David Prunty, founded Pruntytown, West Virginia. Another ancestor Christian Sturtz was an early settler in Somerset County, Pennsylvania.

Through the post office and in other ways, I have met a number of people seeking their "Roots" in the Wellersburg area. I have been able in some small way to help some of these people in their search and find this very rewarding and a good way to make new friends.

SAMUEL LENHART FAMILY

Margaret McMillan was the daughter of John and Nancy Kilpatrick McMillan and the granddaughter of James and Eleanor McMillan, and John and Jane Kilpatrick. John and James McMillan were Revolutionary War soldiers. Margaret (born 1813, Somerset County) married Samuel Lenhart (born 1806, Somerset County) on December 28, 1834. They left Somerset County for Ohio in 1836 with one child, John. Six children were born to them in Ohio, Henry, Sarah Jane, Susan, Nancy, Washington and Ellen. The family then moved to Whitley County, Indiana in 1850. Two more children, Almeda and Edeth, were born there. In 1855, the family moved to Butler County, Iowa being among the first settlers there. Samuel was a successful farmer and became a prominent citizen of the county. He died 1885, and Margaret died 1895. Both are buried in Lynwood Cemetery at Clarksville, Iowa.

John and Washington Lenhart fought in the Civil War. John saw his first cousin, Jehu Philippi, fall during the Battle of Pleasant Hill, Louisiana 1864. Jehu was the son of Mary (Polly) McMillan Philippi, the youngest child of John and Nancy McMillan.

Samuel and Margaret McMillan Lenhart

After the death of Margaret her two sons, John and Henry, went to Texas where John became involved in a range war and killed a man, but was never convicted of the crime. He died in 1920. Henry died in 1923. Both are buried at Rosenburg, Texas.

I am descended from Samuel and Margaret Lenhart through their daughter, Susan. Her daughter, Amanda Jane Thomas Buchholz was my maternal grandmother. Amanda's daughter, Birdella Sophia Buchholz Kelley was my mother.

I was born on Thanksgiving Day, 1919, in South Dakota, the child of Birdella and John E.J. Kelley. Some of my earliest memories are of a family of American Indians who lived near my parents' home. By the time I was in the second grade I had lived in five states — South Dakota, Montana, Wisconsin, Iowa and Illinois. My parents finally settled in Sycamore, Illinois where I grew up.

I was enlisted in the Women's Army Corps in 1944 and discharged in 1945. I married T/Sergeant Alexander Dryden at Boise, Idaho in 1945. We have lived since 1945 in Sycamore, where our interests have been in flowers, dogs, cats and birds. Besides being a factory and office worker all these years I also struggled through eight years of night classes at Northern Illinois University to finally graduate from that institution in August, 1971 at the age of fifty-two years. For the past twenty years I have been researching the history of the Lenharts and of the Thomases from whom I am descended through Susan Lenhart's husband, Charles Nelson Thomas. It has been a lot of fun. I now know a lot more of the geography, history, laws and mores of my country than I did when I started.

Grandmothers are very special. This isn't to say that other relatives aren't special as well, but when I think of my grandmother, an image of devotion takes shape in my mind which is expressed with a thousand sustaining memories that have been collecting in the shadows of my recollection since I was a young child, like colorful autumn leaves carefully pressed inside a scrapbook. It is an im-

My husband died June 25, 1985. After his death I worked for almost ten years making [illegible] for several [illegible] Community. On December 31, 1994, I became the clerk in charge of the [illegible] Post Office at Wellersburg. I now hold this office.

I am a member of the United Methodist Church. I have many interests and hobbies. For many years I have been interested in genealogy and have been working on various branches of my family, especially on the history of the Feathers family. My sister Dorothy [illegible] was also interested in starting an annual Feathers Reunion. We were able to have the first one in [illegible]. It is held each year on the last Sunday in July at the Community [illegible] ground in Wellersburg.

My great grandfather Andrew Feathers came from Germany in August 1834 together with his wife, two small sons and his wife's mother. They lived in Allegany County, Maryland, for a few years then, in 1839, they bought a home in Wellersburg. About five years later they bought a farm in Southampton Township, Somerset County. This farm extended to the top of the Little Allegheny Mountain which forms the county line between Somerset and Bedford counties. The "Feathers Rocks" high rock formation on the top of the mountain are named for Andrew Feathers.

Several ancestors of my mother were early settlers in Allegany County, Maryland, Taylor County, West Virginia and Somerset County, Pennsylvania.

My great-great-great grandfather Reuben [illegible] from New York fought in the Revolution and soon after the war came to Maryland and bought land [illegible] west of Fort Cumberland. Another great-great grandfather John [illegible], and his brother David [illegible], West Virginia. Another ancestor Christian [illegible] was an early settler in Somerset County, Pennsylvania.

Through the [illegible] and in other ways, I have met a number of people seeking their "roots" in the Wellersburg area. I have been able in some small way to help some of these people in their search and find it very rewarding and a good way to make new friends.

[illegible] She Margaret (born 1813 Somerset County) married Samuel Lenhart (born 1808 Somerset County) on December 22, 1836. They left Somerset County for Ohio in 1838 with their child John. Six children were born in Ohio — [illegible], Henry, Sarah Ann, Susan, George Washington and [illegible]. The family then moved to Whitley County, Indiana in 1852. Two more children, Amelia and Adam, were born there. In 1856, the family moved to [illegible] County, Iowa being among the first settlers there. Samuel was a successful farmer and became a prominent citizen of the county. He died 1860 and Margaret died [illegible]. Both are buried in [illegible] Cemetery at [illegible], Iowa.

Both sons [illegible] fought in the Civil War. John was [illegible] first [illegible], from [illegible] was born June 4, 1790 in [illegible]. He with his father, John Hauger and his son, William Hauger, was a farmer by occupation. [illegible] he married [illegible], the daughter of John and Anna Maria [illegible] Knepper. [illegible] father, John Knepper, was born in [illegible]. He was a [illegible] and he died in 1837. He and Anna Maria [illegible] were the parents of 14 children. It could be noted that all these children became [illegible] of Somerset County and [illegible] a soldier in the War of 1812. They [illegible] John was born in [illegible] in 1750 he came to [illegible].

John Hauger, father of Jacob Hauger, was born in Germany in 1728. After coming to America, he married Maria Barbara [illegible], born in 1740, died 1810. When she was young her family and home in Berks County were destroyed by Indians. She and her brothers were held captive for [illegible] years in [illegible]. They were exchanged by an Indian chief [illegible]. John Hauger served in the Revolution under [illegible] in Captain [illegible] company, Berks County. He was buried on his farm at [illegible] County and his death December 4, 1812.

CHRISTIAN LEHR

I am Dorothy [illegible] Lehr. I grew up in Somerset County, Pennsylvania, on a farm near the town of Wellersburg. I was [illegible] years old when we moved to this farm where my father had been [illegible]. [illegible] 1927 I was married to Christian Albert Lehr from near Cumberland, Maryland. My husband fought with the army in France in World War I. After our marriage we lived in Maryland for several years then in March 1933 we moved to Wellersburg. My husband worked as a [illegible] for the Celanese Corporation of America. We had a son Stanley and a daughter [illegible]. Stanley and his wife Charlotte have three children and [illegible] grandchildren; they live in [illegible], Pennsylvania. [illegible] and her husband Robert [illegible] have two children and two grandchildren; they live near [illegible], Pennsylvania.

and from there to Brunersburg in [illegible] He built the first grist mill at Brunersburg, and was one of the three first Associate Judges appointed for Williams county, a position he held for many years. He built the first grist and saw mills in what is now Williams county.

About the 20th of Nov. 1833, Wm. Wyatt moved from Delaware county and settled near the Perkins's, on lands he had previously "entered." Mr. Wyatt informs us that on the night when the "stars fell" (13th of Nov.) he was encamped between the two Powell's creeks, and that he reached his destination on the 20th.

In 1839 the number of old settlers in this vicinity had materially increased. Dr. Thomas Kent, who had moved to Lafayette a year or two before, favors us with the following list of voters at the election in 1839: John Perkins, Garrett Perkins, Isaac Perkins, Ezra Wilson, Reuben H. Gilson, George B. Jones, Isaac Swagger, William Killpatrick, Jas. McKinley, Henry Johnson, James Alexander, Garrett T. Hill, David Pickett, Alonzo Rawson, Rob't. Thompson, George Everett, Thomas Kent, Benjamin Kent, Henry Cassatt, John Beaver, George Lantz, Daniel Wyatt, —— Davison.

About that time an effort to made to change the location of the county seat from Fort Defiance to a more central point in the county. Several localities aspired to the honor, among them the villages of Pulaski and Center; also the Perkins' farm on Beaver creek, Bowman's farm two miles south-west of Bryan, and the "Walnut-tree site," one and a-half miles west. The present site of Bryan was a howling wilderness, but its owner, Hon. John A. Bryan, then Auditor of State, coveted the honors and was mainly instrumental in securing a change. In the year 1839-40 the Legislature enacted a law to change the county seat and appointed Hons. Jos. McCutchen, of Crawford, Burns of Coshocton, and Culbertson of Perry, Commissioners to select a site. In the spring of 1840 the Commissioners arrived, and after a passing glance at the several sites, unanimously decided in favor of Bryan's tract. It is quietly intimated that the location was agreed upon before the Commissioners left Columbus, but it was necessary to personally visit the localities before announcing their determination. But probably the strongest inducement for an, and was occupied by Mr. Wyatt and family a long time. Mr. Jacob Over, who had visited the site before the town commenced, returned a few days after the completion of the cabin and boarded with Mr. Wyatt during the following winter. Mr. Over still resides in Bryan and is a hale, hearty man.

Before the raising of Mr. Wyatt's cabin, Uncle John Kaufman commenced an improvement on the corner of Main and Bryan streets, where Dr. Graser's residence now stands, and soon had up a comfortable cabin into which he and his family removed during the fall of '40. Uncle John made the brick for the present Court House, in 1842-3, and assisted in its construction. He still resides in Bryan and finds much pleasure in recounting incidents in the early history of the country.

The third dwelling was erected by a man named Hamilton, on the lot owned by J. J. Snyder on Lynn street. During the fall and winter several other cabins were raised and occupied, and the county seat began to assume shape.

Up to the spring of 1841 the citizens had been using surface water which they obtained from holes or reservoirs dug in the ground. Mr. Wyatt having received liberal encouragement, dug a well on his lot, just in the rear of his cabin. Fountains or flowing wells were unthought of and he was proceeding in the usual manner to dig a curb well. Having reached the hard-pan late in the evening he determined to rest from his labors. Returning to work in the morning he found that the water had burst the hard-pan, filled the well and was running out at the top. This was the first well in Bryan, and it was dug several months after the town site was laid out. Hamilton dug a well on his lot a short time afterwards. The first fountain bored was on the lot where Carter's drug store now stands, by Dr. Thomas Kent, in 1842, with tools made expressly for the purpose by Wm. Sheridan, sen. It was the first fountain, so-called, in town.

During the fall and winter of 1840-'41, a log Court House was raised on the lot now occupied by I. R. Whitmore, on north Main street, and in the spring of 1841 the county records were removed from Defiance. The county offices were in a log building on the south side of the square. The county officers did not come with the records, but entrusted the business in the hands of the deputies. The officers and deputies were—

burg, West Virginia, in 1798, and came to Milford township with his parents in 1804. At the age of seventeen he learned blacksmithing, which trade he followed fifty-three years. Mr. Freeze has a remarkable memory, and is well versed in history, both local and national. His wife, Hannah, is still living, and is four months older than Mr. Freeze.

John McMillen, one of the early settlers, lived in Turkey-Foot township. Among his children were: John, James, Samuel, Jane (Bays), Sarah (Davis) and Margaret (Lenhart). John was born in Turkey-Foot, and resided there until his death, following the tanner's trade. His first wife was Mary, daughter of Jacob Rush. Rush was an early settler, and lived to be about ninety-eight years old. John McMillen's second wife was Sarah Critchfield, and his third, Clarissa Williams. His children: Jacob, Jehu, Reuben, Eli, William (deceased), Silas and John (deceased). Reuben McMillen learned the saddlery business in the shop of Michael Snyder; purchased the shop in 1849, and still conducts the business.

Samuel H. Dull, Esq., son of Peter Dull, was born and reared on the Dull homestead, in Milford township. When eighteen years of age he began learning the wagonmaker's trade in the shop of Aaron Will. In 1851 he started in business for himself. In August, 1862, he was mustered into service in Co. H, 142d regt. Penn. Vols.; mustered out in June, 1865. He has been justice of the peace ten years, besides holding other minor offices.

GEBHARTSBURG.

Gebhartsburg (Gebhart's postoffice) is a small collection of houses, one-half mile east of New Centreville. Village lots were laid out in this place on November 22, 1834, at the same time with New Centreville. George Gebhart was the founder of the place, and Simon Gebhart, his son, did the surveying. Until 1881, Gebhartsburg was the voting-place of Milford township. In that year, by vote of the citizens, two polling-places were established, the eastern half of the township voting at Rockwood, and the western half at Gebhartsburg.

The first house, after the lots were laid off, was erected by Henry Walter in 1835. It is a large frame building, used both as a store and a dwelling. In this building Charles A. Walter now carries on a successful mercantile business, but it is owned by the widow of John Weller.

Opposite the old store is the site of one of the old log taverns of pioneer days. George Gebhart was the landlord, and is said to have entertained George Washington in the old house. The old structure disappeared about 1822, and the brick tavern stand, now owned by Mrs. Weller, took its place.

George Gebhart was the first blacksmith, probably over a hundred years ago. He had a shop on the old tavern site. It was afterward rebuilt on another spot, and has since been torn away and rebuilt twice.

The first schoolhouse in Gebhartsburg was erected in 1848, and rebuilt in 1860. The postoffice, the first in the township, was established about 1808. Postmasters: John Gebhart, Geo. Gebhart, John Knable, Robert Walter, and Charles A. Walter, present incumbent.

The cheese-factory at the lower end of Gebhartsburg was built by Charles A. Walter, in 1877, and is now owned by J. C. Weller. Gebhartsburg has one store, one hotel, one blacksmith-shop and a cheese-factory.

CHURCHES.

The first house of worship in the township was erected on James Wilson's farm by the Lutherans and Presbyterians. It was a rude log structure, and was erected long before 1800. Rev. Steck (1783–94) was probably the first Lutheran preacher here, succeeded by Rev. Frederick W. Long (1794–1808). Near the old church stood the first schoolhouse ever built in Milford. At present there are two Lutheran churches in the township—Laurel church, three miles south of Rockwood, and Pine church, three miles east of Centreville. Laurel church has a membership of about ninety, and is at present without a pastor. It was built at a cost of about twelve hundred dollars. Pine church cost nearly the same amount. It at present has about eighty members. There are also three union churches in the township: Sanners Lutheran and Reformed, about four miles east of New Centreville; Union church, three miles east of Centreville, and Pleasant Hill church, three miles northeast of Centreville. A Brethren or German Baptist meeting-house was built about 1855 at a cost of one thousand dollars. The membership is large.

MARRIAGES.

Jacob Thomas was also a native of Somerset county and was a day laborer. He and his wife had children as follows: Abraham, Samuel, see forward; Jacob, Amos, deceased; Elizabeth, Barbara, May.

Samuel Thomas obtained a common school education, and after completing his studies turned his attention to agricultural pursuits, which he has since very successfully followed. In 1891 he purchased the farm upon which he now lives. In politics Mr. Thomas affiliates with the Republican party. He married, September 28, 1871, Clarissa Kretchman, born March 21, 1853, in Rockwood township, Somerset county, Pennsylvania, daughter of William and Christina (Kine) Kretchman, and granddaughter of Jacob Kine, who was born in Somerset, and was a farmer by occupation. The Kines originally came from Germany. William Kretchman, father of Mrs. Thomas, was born May 19, 1827, in Elk Lick township, and followed the quiet but useful occupation of a farmer during his entire active working life. His wife, Christina Kine, was also a native of Elk Lick township, born December 25, 1828. Their children: Clarissa, Ellen, Albert, Harvey, Minnie, deceased; and Thomas. Mr. and Mrs. Thomas are the parents of the followed named children: Elmira D., born February 19, 1872; Alice R., October 6, 1875, married Charles ———, a farmer, and lives in Lee county; Lulu M., July 13, 1881; William H., February 20, 1883; Lloyd H., May 28, 1885; Millie M., June 30, 1888; Lucy E., November 22, 1889; Cristine F., April 30, 1893; and Albert S., May 5, 1895.

RUSH S. McMILLEN.

The family of which Rush S. McMillen, a prosperous agriculturist of Rockwood, is a worthy representative was founded in this country by James McMillen, great-great-grandfather of Rush S. McMillen, who came from Scotland or northern Ireland, settling in Dauphin county, Pennsylvania, from whence he removed to Somerset county, same state, about the year 1790, locating on a farm near Fort Hill, which he cultivated and improved, realizing therefrom a comfortable livelihood for his family. James McMillen was born August 20, 1735, died March, 1821, aged eighty-six years and five months. His wife, Eleanor McMillen, born February 20, 1736, died November, 1810, aged seventy-five years.

John McMillen, son of James and Eleanor McMillen, was born in Dauphin county, Pennsylvania, July 19, 1764, died February 1, 1856, aged ninety-one years, six months, twelve days. It is stated in obituary of John McMillen that at an early age he connected himself with the Methodist Episcopal church, of which he was a consistent and useful member. He was justice of the peace for many years, discharging his duties with the utmost efficiency. He married, March 25, 1793, Nancy Kilpatrick, born November 3, 1777, died March 25, 1854, aged seventy-six years, four months, twelve days, daughter of John and Jane Kilpatrick, the former of whom came from Scotland or northern part of Ireland and settled at Padytown, Somerset county, Pennsylvania, where he died December 1, 1834, aged ninety-nine years; he claimed to be one hundred years old. His wife, Jane, died September 7, 1821, aged seventy-four years. The children of John and Nancy (Kilpatrick) McMillen were: John K., born May 26, 1795; James, December 19, 1798; Jane, December 30, 1800; Eleanor, July 23, 1802; William, December 24, 1804; Samuel E., November 12, 1807; Sarah, October 4, 1810; Margaret, November 25, 1813; Mary, April 15, 1820.

John K. McMillen, eldest son of John and Nancy (Kilpatrick) McMillen, born at Padytown, Somerset county, Pennsylvania, May 26, 1795, resided there throughout his lifetime and died September 28, 1870. He was a manufacturer of leather, and in addition to this devoted considerable time to the cultivation of the soil. In 1859 he was appointed postmaster, serving in that capacity up to the time of his decease. Mr. McMillen married (first), August 5, 1819, Mary Rush, born June 4, 1802, died June 28, 1838, daughter of Jacob Rush, whom tradition says sprang from the same branch of the Rush family to which old Dr. Benjamin Rush, of Philadelphia, belonged, he being one of the signers of the Declaration of Independence. Mr. McMillen married (second), July 9, 1839, Sarah Critchfield, who died November 18, 1849. Mr. McMillen married (third), February 5, 1850, Clarissa Williams. His children were: Jacob R., born July 1, 1820; Jehu, May 7, 1822; Reuben, March 7, 1824; Nancy, March 26, 1826; Eli, November 28, 1827; John, May 22, 1835; William H., May 20, 1840: Silas, July 23, 1842.

Jacob R. McMillen, eldest son of John K. and Mary (Rush) McMillen, was born July 1, 1820, at Padytown, Somerset county, Pennsylvania. He was educated in the district schools, and throughout his active career devoted his attention to the manufacture of leather and agricultural pursuits. He was honored by his townsmen by election to the offices of justice of the peace, in which he served several terms; associate judge of Somerset county: member of the house of representatives, in which he served two terms. His religious affiliations are with the Methodist Episcopal church, and his political allegiance is given to the Republican party. He married, March 9, 1843, Susan Stanton, born in Holmes county, Ohio, January 31, 1825, died February 19, 1906, daughter of Urias Stanton, who was killed by a horse, April 8, 1825, aged thirty years. Children of Jacob R. and Susan (Stanton) McMillen: Rush S., born November 23, 1844; John T., July 24, 1849, married Melezine Pile, January 21, 1879, daughter of Jeremiah and Susan (Stough) Pile, of Mill Creek township, and three children were born to them—William Judson, Nettie Florence, and Stephen Bayes, who died at the age of three years. Susan (Stanton) McMillen, mother of these children, faithfully performed the duties of daughter, wife and mother, and her demise was sincerely mourned by all who had the honor of her acquaintance.

Rush S. McMillen, eldest son of Jacob R. and Susan (Stanton) McMillen, was born in Upper Turkeyfoot township, Somerset county, Pennsylvania, November 23, 1844. He attended the district schools, State Normal, Rainsburg Seminary (Bedford county, Pennsylvania), Morgantown Academy (West Virginia). He followed in the footsteps of his ancestors and for many years was a manufacturer of leather, but at present (1906) is engaged in farming and in collecting samples of fertilizer for the agricultural association of the state. He is connected with several enterprises, but with poor success financially. In November, 1887, he was elected sheriff of Somerset county, which office he filled for three years, one term; was township clerk, officer in house of representatives and principal of schools at Terra Alta, West Virginia, three terms. He is a Republican in politics. He is a member of the Lutheran church, order of Free and Accepted Masons and Independent Order of Odd Fellows.

He married, February 19, 1867, at Terra Alta, Preston county, West Virginia, Rachel Melissa Graham, daughter of John and Sarah (Elliott) Graham, and their children are: Mary Martha, born at New Lexington, Somerset county, Pennsylvania, October 27, 1868, attended district schools and Mount Union College, Ohio, married H. H. Baker, of Harrisburg, Pennsylvania, chief clerk in the insurance department, and they have one daughter, Melissa Ruth Baker. Susan Lillian, born October 8, 1870, died March 10, 1876; Jacob Clinton, born at New Lexington, April 20, 1878, attended district schools, now a farmer in Kingwood, Pennsylvania, married, June 27, 1897, Ida Weller, daughter of Uriah and Ada (Sullivan) Weller, and they have one son, Dwight Graham McMillen. Mrs. McMillen, the mother of these children, is a member of the Lutheran church.

HARMON HUSBAND.

Harmon Husband, the pioneer of the Somerset settlement, was of Quaker parentage, and was born about 1720. Some accounts make the place of his birth in Pennsylvania, near Philadelphia. He may, however, have been born in Cecil county, Maryland. He is known to have attended school in Baltimore when about twenty years of age, after which he settled in Cecil county, and probably married there. His wife dying within a few years, he went to North Carolina, where he married a second time. His wife's maiden name was Emy Allen.

Being a man of means, he soon became a leading citizen of what was then Orange county. In the troubles that presently arose between the Royal Governor, Tryon, and the people, he sided with the latter, and soon became one of their recognized leaders. Becoming obnoxious to those in authority, he was arrested and thrown into prison, but was released on bail, but not until after his imprisonment had raised the country to arms. On trial he was acquitted of the charge of riot, after which he was elected to the assembly of Orange county, and was expelled from that body at the instance of Governor Tryon. These troubles finally reached a crisis in 1771, in what is known in history as the battle of Alamance, in which the people, or Regulators, as they were styled, were defeated. Husband's Quaker training had made him averse to bloodshed, and so far as he was concerned it is said that he never contemplated such a collision as took place. But he was too prominently connected with the movement to be overlooked, and orders were given for his arrest, which was avoided by a prompt flight through Virginia to his former home in Maryland. Not feeling himself safe even there from the wrath of Governor Tryon, he determined to put a still greater distance between himself and his enemy.

It may be asked, what have the doings of Harmon Husband in North Carolina to do with the history of Somerset county? Nothing at all, further than to show the reasons and motives that impelled such a man as he was, living in what, for those times, was a well settled community, and who was well off in this world's goods, to abandon all and seek a home amid the perils of such a wilderness as Somerset county then was; becoming one of its earliest settlers, and, in time, the same man of affairs in that community as he had been in the one from which he had fled. That he was closely identified with the early growth and prosperity of what is now Somerset county, and was one of its foremost citizens, is evidenced by the fact that he was a member of the Assembly from Bedford county in 1778. In 1786 he was a member of the Board of County Commissioners. He was also a member of the assembly in 1790. He became involved in the whiskey insurrection of 1794. He attended the Parkinson Ferry meeting as a delegate from Bedford county, where he really labored to bring the trouble to a peaceable solution, and, in order to guide and hold the more turbulent element in check, it was necessary for him, as well as some others, to apparently range himself on their side. Harmon Husband was placed under arrest as an active leader of the insurrection, and taken to Philadelphia for

News Letter from Iowa

By Mrs. Alexander Dryden

Early settlers in Butler County, Iowa, from History of Butler and Bremer Counties:

"Pioneer settlers in the northern part of the county were Mr. Laken, Commodore Bennett, John Fox, Hugh Thomas, John Lenhart, J. J. Cross and Milton Wilson."

"SAMUEL LENHART came to Butler County in June 1855 and first settled on the south half of section 19, Fremont Township, remaining there until 1880, when he purchased 125 acres adjoining the city of Clarksville. He owns 800 acres and his improvements are among the best in the county.

Samuel Lenhart was born in Somerset Co. Pa., 31 Jan. 1806; died 15 Mar. 1885; buried Lynwood Cemetery Clarksville, Iowa. He married in 1834 Margaret McMillan, born Somerset Co., Pa., 25 Nov. 1813; died 9 Sept. 1895; daughter of John and Nancy (Kilpatrick) McMillan, late of Paddytown. Their children were John 1835; Henry 1836; Sarah Jane 1839; Susan 1840; Nancy 1842; Washington 1844; Ellen 1847; Almeda 1850; Edith 1853. In 1834 the family settled in Ohio, in 1845 in Indiana, thence to Iowa in 1855."

At page 535 the organization of the Butler County Bank is mentioned with capital stock $50,000.00; principal stockholders are James Butler, J. Perrin, M. B. & W. S. Wamsley, A. Slimmer, S. Lenhart, N. B. Ridgway and Samuel McRoberts.

At page 547, "business places in Clarksville include J. N. McMillan, harness shop."

At page 588, "Fremont Township was settled in 1855, with McCarty Bement, Shadrach Bonwell, Samuel Lenhart and James Trobaugh families here; in the following year Nelson Bement, James G. Temple, Robert Renfrew and J. J. Cross families arrived. William Bilmore and John Saddler were also early settlers on section 6."

At page 596, "Fremont Township in 1855 a part of Butler Township, was created an independent district in 1859. The first election was held 11 Oct. 1859 at the house of William R. Scots to Assemble at Grandfather Mountain Scots assemble in large numbers each summer for the Grandfather Mountain Highland Games and Festival at Linville, N. C. July 14 and 15 will be the dates for the 1962 attraction.

The MacRae family, founders of Linville, first sponsored the popular and colorful event, now in its sixth year. Other Scottish society clans presently sponsoring the event include Donald, Morrison, Colquhoun, Hay, Gregor, MacMillan, St. Andrews, McBain, McCormick, MacDougall, Urquhart, Lindsay and MacLeod.

The program lists Track and Field Events, Highland Dancing, Piping, Caber Tossing, contestants in uniform Highland Costume, Highland Wrestling, Bagpipe Bands. Cash awards and trophies supplied by respective Clan Societies.

Groups gather for picnic lunch. Clans hold annual meetings. A worship service by guest minister 11 a. m. Sunday. Address by a distinguished guest of honor.

Carolina's top scenic attraction, Grandfather Mountain, elevation 5,964 feet, featuring the famous Mile High Swinging Bridge; entrance: U. S. Route 221, one mile from Parkway at Linville.

COMMUNITY SERVICE

Ask not what your country or community will give you but tell them what you will do for them . . .

Pittsburgh is now boosting the tourist trade and advertising Stoughton's Lake and Mountain Playhouse in Somerset County.

The State Department of Labor and Industry estimates that the Laurel Highlands section can be brought up to a $50,000,000.00 business giving employment to 12,000 people.

Our back yards are full of diamonds . . . We need to furnish the tools and money to have them dug up . . . and made presentable to the tourists, who spent twenty billion dollars last year in the United States.

It has been estimated that fifty tourist cars coming into the community each day will equal a $100,000.00 payroll annually.—George A. Boord.

Early History Of Pocahontas

The village of Pocahontas near the Mason Dixon Line in southern Somerset County was probably named for the Indian princess by that name. Early maps show locations of both earthen and stone mounds nearby. An ancient Indian Trail crossed at this point from Wills Creek to the Great Crossings of the Youghiogheny River. Many Indian artifacts have been found in the area. There is a tradition that pioneer settlers found ruins of a fortification at the source of Wills Creek, reportedly erected by the army of General Braddock about 1755. General Braddock had 150 Indians as guides and scouts when the expedition left Wills Creek June 8, 1755, enroute to Fort Duquesne.

In 1800 Rev. Henry Geise ministered to Lutheran and Reformed families in Pocahontas. They erected in 1810 the Werner school house, a log structure. Among the first settlers were Peter Engle, who was the first schoolmaster, Jacob Garlitz, Christian, Jacob and John Lint, and Martin Weimer.

In 1802 David Miller was the first blacksmith in the village; Peter Keefer blacksmith also located here in 1806.

In 1810 John Meese operated a sawmill. The mill could only be used in the springtime when freshets raised the water level sufficient to provide the power.

Pocahontas claims the highest elevation of any unincorporated town in Pennsylvania.

In 1816 Christian and Jacob Lint were listed as coppers.

In 1818 John Engle built a saw mill.

In 1845 town lots were laid out on land of Daniel Yutzy; Samuel Heller was surveyor. Charles Miller operated a hotel and hostelry in 1843.

In 1851 a postoffice was established with B. J. Yoder first postmaster.

Samuel McKenzie operated a store in 1844; Jacob Lint and Gabriel Miller merchants in 1852; Fred Durr merchant in 1871.

Miles Thomas and son established a match factory here in 1850.

1903 county directory lists blacksmiths A. A. Gaff and Andrew J. Stoner; carpenter Solomon Housel; sawmiller P. C. Lynch.

Early Methodism in Somerset Co.

By Raymond M. Bell

The first Methodist preacher on record to visit Somerset County was Robert Ayres, circuit rider on Redstone Circuit 1786-87. His JOURNAL, at the Historical Society of Western Pennsylvania in Pittsburgh, tells of an exploratory trip to extend Redstone Circuit:

Thu Sept 21, 1786, rode 8 M rough road over Chestnut Ridge and stopped and fed. Then 10 M over the Laurel Hill to Jones Mills and there dined and fed. Thence 5 M to Michael Kings and tarried. I am now in what is called The Scrub Glades.

Fri 22, After some time in the morning rode 2 M to Samuel Wrights, an old acquaintance, and tarried. Had much discourse on religious subjects. He seemed, I thought, almost persuaded to be a Christian.

Sat 23, Returned to Kings. Wrote several letters to York County.

Sun 24, Preached at Jacob Weimers and joined a Society of 10 or 12 members. My soul alive to God. Tarried at Brother Kings.

Mon 25, Rode about 8 M through the Glades, and through a beautiful grove of white pines and preached to a small number of chiefly Germans. I spoke as plainly as I could, but the Dutch I doubt did not understand. Herman Husband's wife was present who invited me home with her, where I tarried by importunity, that night, and was entertained with a variety of singular and wonderful opinions, or rather notions . . . And that the vast age of the patriarchs of which we read in scripture was not the age of the single persons, but the age of that government. And many other such things too tedious to insert.

Tue 26, Set out and rode about 4 M to Friend Beams, an old acquaintance, and tarried a few minutes, then rode over the Laurel Hill, a long and tedious path to Fort Ligonier, about 20 miles.

In 1803 James Quinn in Western Christian Advocate says that the preaching points in Somerset County were: Somerfield, Confluence, Michael Kings (Milford Township). .

After Redstone the work became a part of Pittsburgh Circuit, then Connellsville Circuit and in 1815 Somerset Circuit was formed. Robert Boyd in his Papers lists these preaching points for Somerset Circuit 1817—mostly private homes:

J Bay (Stephen Bays in tax list Milford 1783)

Bishop Francis Asbury presided over the first Methodist Conference ever held in Western Pennsylvania in July, 1788. It was held in Uniontown. At that Conference, the first Methodist circuit rider to Pittsburgh circuit was appointed. He was Charles Conaway. At the same time the first men were appointed to Somerset County. They were Jacob Lurton and Lasley Matthews. They were really appointed to the Redstone Circuit with Richard Whatcoat as presiding elder. Others had been appointed to the Redstone Circuit since 1784 by the Baltimore Conference. But it was understood that Lurton and Matthews were to start in Somerset County.

Methodism originated in England, under John Wesley. The group was first formed at Oxford in 1729. Francis Asbury was the recognized leader of American Methodism in 1771, spreading the teachings all over Maryland, and other colonies. He encouraged other circuit riders to spread out in all directions preaching the Gospel. They were all laymen. None were ordained. John Wesley, at Bristol, England, on September 10, 1784, wrote a letter, "recommending ordination of his American preachers, and vesting in them the authority to administer the sacraments."

So when Francis Asbury rode away from the historic Christmas Conference of 1784, held in Baltimore, Md., he had the documentary evidence in his saddlebags that he had been ordained as deacon, elder and general superintendent, or as it soon became, "Bishop." This timely organization of the Methodist Church with an ordained ministry proved to be a great advantage in the Redstone Country and Methodism spread rapidly all over Western Pennsylvania. There were at one time 20 to 25 Methodist Churches in Somerset County.

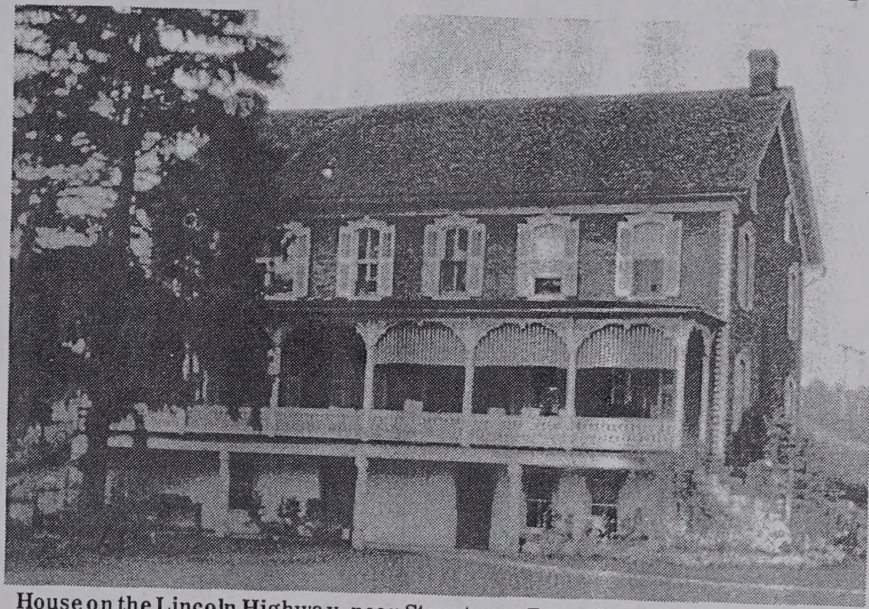
Right Hand of David "Robber" Lewis

by William Trall Doncaster, Jr.



House on the Lincoln Highway, near Stoystown, Pa. built by David Dibert about 1810-15. Michael Dibert and brother John of Bedford County bought 300 acres of land on both sides of "The Great Road from Bedford to Pittsburgh" from Daniel Stoy and wife Sarah Higgins, dau. of John for 1,000 pounds. On March 24, 1802, John bought Michael's share for 500 pounds. In 1808 John died and willed the farm to his eldest son David (1775-1842) and wife Elizabeth (Fickes) Dibert. Sometime there-after, David "with good help" made bricks to build the "Big Red Brick House". This was a "Road House" where conestoga wagons stopped to take on fresh horses. From Dibert Records. Perhaps David Lewis the robber, passed this way.

Along with most other states in the union, Pennsylvania shares the inheritance of a common folk culture. Beginning with the native Indians, legends have been handed down of massacres and captivities, of numerous lover's leaps and solitary encounters with buffalo and wildcats that once roamed the forests. These were followed with exciting tales of the French fur traders; the drivers of the "pack horse trains" and Conestoga wagons. Perhaps the most colorful and legendary of all were the frontier "Robin-Hoods," who appeared in various parts of the state but were most prominent and notorious along the "Old Forbes Road" that intersected seven mountains into southwestern Pennsylvania.

Our American legendary giants, "Buffalo Bill", John Henry, Jesse James are, to a lesser degree, matched by folk heroes whose myths were enacted within the borders of Pennsylvania. Such tales have survived through the twentieth century because of the predisposition of the human mind to hero worship. However, time and rich imaginations tend to cloud the misdeeds and exaggerate the achievements, making it difficult to separate the fact from fiction, the history from legend. Thus oral tradition keeps these stories alive through the telling and remembering of the "tall tale". Nineteenth century "yarn weavers" developed a flair for the big dimension. Story items from a local newspaper or a morsel of gossip was all that was needed to wrap around whatever kernel of truth might exist with the mysterious and fanciful. These were the days when the woodsman had neither movie house nor television, so he created the "folk hero" for the theatre of his mind.

Of all of Pennsylvania's legendary heroes, none appears to be quite as daring and notorious as David "Robber" Lewis. For over one hundred and sixty years his exploits have been narrated in the hills and valleys of the Alleghenies and on the ridges of southern Pennsylvania's seven mountains.[1] Lewis was a latter part of that backlash of the American Revolution that produced a crime wave of a curious unorthodox kind. These highwaymen appeared in picturesque sequences of adventure; high spirited fellows with an exhileration and a bizarre touch of chivalry.[2] They were adverse to violence and to a certain extent respected private property. To the backwoods Pennsylvanian, they were reincarnated Robin Hoods who robbed the rich to help the poor. Consequently, Pennsylvania folklore took to heart these dashing desperados. Villians as heroes were popular. Their cunning to outwit their pursuers became the theme of song and prose throughout the nineteenth century.

The earliest record of the name Robert Lewis is that associated with two other robbers in Bedford County in 1815.[3] After robbing a man, Lewis' companions advocated killing lest the man eventually would be a witness against them. Lewis drew the line at murder, stated he "wanted no man's blood on his hands," gave his victim a few dollars and permitted him to go on his way. Later that year he was arrested for four different offenses and charged with passing counterfeit coin and bank notes. On February 17, 1816, he was tried, convicted and sentenced to six years imprisonment in the penitentiary at Philadelphia. He managed to break from the jail and escaped. He was later recaptured, imprisoned but pardoned by Governor Findlay.[4] As a result of a gunshot wound, he died in the Bellefonte County jail in 1820. After his death there appeared a pamphlet entitled "The Confession of David Lewis," by James Duncan, Lewis' attorney at the time of his trial for desertion from the army. The confession contained the salient facts of his life and his bold but short career. From this emerged the legend of "The Right Hand of 'Robber' Lewis".[5]

He was born March 20, 1790, near Carlisle, Pennsylvania, of poor but respectable parents, one of a large number of children. His father died when he was less than ten years old. For the next seven years he remained with his mother and assisted in rearing the other children. He worked at several occupations until he enlisted in the army. He was punished by an army sergeant for a minor offense, deserted, later to reinlist under an assumed name. Nevertheless he was soon discovered and recognized as a deserter. He was sentenced to death. Army discipline was known to be extremely rigid at the time, just prior to the War of 1812. Serving a week of his sentence, he made another escape beginning his long and varied career of robbery and lawlessness.

His early activities as an outlaw find him victimizing country banks whose notes were easy to counterfeit. Discovering that the most expert counterfeiters operated in Vermont, he journeyed there and engaged in making enormous quantities of spurious bank bills which he later successfully passed in New York State. Again captured and committed to jail in Troy, he managed another escape with the help of the jail-keepers daughter who fled with him and whom he later married.

With his new bride he lived briefly in Albany and from there went to New York City where he fraternized with the most notorious racketeers. While here he learned that Mrs. John Jacob Astor was to attend a well publicized auction sale. The day of the auction Mrs. Astor made purchases of rare lace and jewelry which she placed in a large net hand-bag. While engaged in conversation, Lewis snatched the bag and made his escape. From New York City he next headed for Princeton, making his headquarters in New Brunswick, New Jersey. Here he lived with his wife, who was supposedly kept in absolute ignorance of his activities. A daughter was born to them during this time. At Princeton, he made his unauspicious presence felt at the university where he is said to have found "empty heads and full purses." He was believed to have fleeced many of the Princeton students of their allowances as they were singing their way "Back to Nassau Hall".

Leaving his wife and child in New Brunswick, his next exploit was in Philadelphia where he became the leader of a band attempting to decoy the eminent financier, Stephen Girard. Taking Girard out of the city and into the country, the prisoner was confined until forced to purchase his freedom. An abhortive attempt was made to dig a tunnel from Philadelphia's Dock Street sewer to Girard's banking house where bank vaults could be reached. But the dangerous illness of Lewis' daughter interrupted the plans, the gang drifted apart and the scheme was abandoned.

David Lewis was reputedly a man of unusual physical strength. Legend claims him to be straight and tall with sandy hair, long arms and thin hands. He was aware that he had the ability to attract others, particularly those who elected to accompany him on his infamous journeys through Pennsylvania and gladly aided him in his numerous escapes. His performances became proverbial, many a signal was raised from an upper story window denoting that the way was clear for him to pass or that food would be brought to one of his many mountain cave hiding places. One such hiding place was believed to be in Somerset County, near Stoystown,[6] where he manufactured a large supply of counterfeit bank notes, later circulated through Bedford and Somerset counties. Here he learned of the death of his wife while giving birth to a second child. He continued with his operations. Counterfeiters were legion in the early part of the nineteenth century, so much so that a book description of counterfeits became the necessary appendage of a merchant's store.

A personal adventure with Lewis in the Allegheny Mountains was reported by a man named Black from Cumberland, Maryland. Black had crossed the mountains on horseback to Brownsville where he collected a large sum of money. While in Brownsville he won another horse in a gambling race. The following day he started home with two horses and a sizable money purse. A man appeared in a lonely ravine and jumped on the back of the accompanying horse, rode along side Black and began to barter for the horse. Black informed the intruder that the horse was not for sale. As they rode on, eventually dismounting for something to eat and perhaps a nip of peach brandy, they became more intimate. The stranger asked Black if he had ever seen Lewis the "Robber?" Black claimed he had not. "Well," said the stranger, "here is Lewis, I am the man." Lewis informed Black that he had witnessed the race in Brownsville and knew that Black was in possession of a large sum of money. Lewis proceded to inform Black that he intended to rob him but because of his gentlemanly characteristics, Lewis would let him go unmolested.

At another time, a large party in search of Lewis met a well dressed stranger on horseback and asked if he had seen or heard anything of Lewis. He replied that he had not and joined in the pursuit. Sometime later one of the members of the party was to receive a letter stating that he had been riding with Lewis. The writer of the letter was anxious to learn if he, and the members of his party, had found the stranger agreeable?

One of the most often told tales of the Lewis cycle is included in the folklore of nearly every venerated outlaw. Asking for overnight lodging in the obscure home of a country widow, Lewis learned that she was in deep trouble because the mortgage on her house was due and the local constable was to arrive the next morning to foreclose on the property. Lewis, living up to his long standing reputation, gave the woman the necessary amount and insisted that she receive a receipt. When Lewis left the next morning, the constable arrived, the necessary business was transacted, and the constable went away with the payment but not the property. On the top of the mountain, the constable was met by "Robber" Lewis, who presented his pistol, took the money that had been loaned to the widow, as well as forty dollars belonging to the constable. Lewis later boasted that the short loan of money to the woman was the best investment he had ever made. Lewis became a legend because of his strong hold on the country people. Though they admired his boldness and poise, his misdeeds may be traced in the court records of Somerset, Bedford, Mifflin and Center counties.

Often captured, Lewis was never long confined. By one trick or another he always escaped. In June, 1820, near Bellefonte, Lewis and a companion waylaid and robbed a wagon transporting store goods. Lewis, persued by a posse of well armed and resolute men, was discovered while shooting mark and he and his companion were demanded to surrender. Having refused, in the melee that followed, Lewis' companion was killed and he was shot in the right arm, near his elbow. Taken prisoner to the jail in Bellefonte, a local physician informed him that his wound had develped gangrene and his only chance to stay alive was to have his arm amputated. This he refused to do. Life without his good arm had no appeal. He died July 30, 1820, at thirty years of age, and was buried in the jail cemetery. Tradition holds that his only daughter became a respected resident of Harrisburg where she lived the remainder of her life.[7]

His spirit lived on in the many legends that developed about him along the old Forbes Road. The next scene to open on his posthumous ventures is portrayed in the White Horse Tavern in old Somerset County, along the Bedford Pike. Considered a favorable inn. In the 1820's, William Thackery immortalized the novel in his novel, "The Virginians." Sitting on the broad window sill of his room he wrote his name with a diamond on the home made glass and penned his description of the surrounding mountain scenery. On the plastered tavern wall was painted a horse of colossal proportion which gave the old inn its name.

The legend held and continued to grow. Early one morning in the fall of 1820, a mysterious young horseman appeared at the tavern, regal in his presence and mounted on a superb black horse. He made his presence known just as the innkeeper's daughter, Dowsabel Casselman, was about to draw water from the well. Tipping the brim of his hat ever so lightly, he politely asked if he might have a drink of water. The shy and flustered Dowsabel took a gourd and offered it to him, filled with water. The innkeeper's daughter was known to be a reputable mountain beauty which the young stranger was quick to recognize. Their conversation was pleasant but brief and the young stranger continued his journey toward Somerset. Hardly had the mysterious stranger left when he was replaced by an old man who came and stood with Dowsabel beside the well. He also asked for a drink of water only to receive the scorn and derision of Dowsabel who told him to get his own drink. His cryptic yet prophetic response went unheeded by the young girl as he replied,

"When that stranger is through with you, you will lead an ape in hell. We will meet again."

Several weeks past as Dowsabel pined for the young stranger, who returned, as she fondly hoped he would. His further conversations with the impressionable and smitten Dowsabel revealed that his real name was David Pevrerey. He was known in the mountains as "Young Lewis," for his only ambition was to follow in the footsteps and make his every action characteristic of the renouned David Lewis, the robber. Knowing the over burdened young girl was bored with her existence and obviously inamored with him, he offered her what he knew would be an inticing proposition which she could not refuse.

"I will take you away with me," he said. "But first you must prove your fitness to be with me."

She listened intently as he told her that in order to win his love, she must secure for him that which he most wanted, the right hand of David Lewis, which possessed miraculous charm, but had to be cut from the corpse which lay in the Bellefonte jail-yard.

A well founded legend developed along the old Forbes Road that anyone possessing the right hand of David Lewis, or any successful brigand, put to death for his crimes, could exercise a spell over those with whom he came in contact. He continued by saying that in order to accomplish the task, Dowsabel must abscond with her father's carriage, secretly drive to Bellefonte, register in the Brenner Hotel and wait for the bills that would be posted announcing the reward for her capture as a runaway. Once taken into custody and housed in the Bellefonte jail, she would be in safe keeping until her father would come to claim her. But in the meantime she must exhume the body of David Lewis, break the hand from the wrist, and climb to freedom over a twenty foot wall.

Young Lewis' demands were quite a fete for any criminal, let alone the demure and inexperienced Dowsabel. Yet the love sick girl was determined to follow through with her lover's outlandish instructions. Hardly had she settled in at the Brenner Hotel when she was recognized and marched off to the Bellefonte jail, awaiting her father's willing ransom. The remainder of the incredible request was carried out with almost miraculous precision. Escaping at night from her cell, severing the bars with a saw that "Young Lewis" had given her, she cleverly broke the rusty lock and calmly walked out into the jail yard. Alternately using a pick and shovel standing against a stone wall, Dowsabel labored at opening the grave of David Lewis in the half frozen snow. Finally, she managed to get a hold of the crumbly right arm, deftly twisting off the hand at the wrist. Then, in the dead of the night, instead of scaling the impossible jail-house wall, she boldly walked through the rooms of the jail house and out into the street, where "Young Lewis" awaited her in a covered carriage.

Some days later, a hooded carriage drew up in front of the old stone tavern in Millerstown. A young girl descended, walked into the tavern and asked for accommodations. No other guests were in the tavern at the time. She was led into the kitchen which was the only lighted room. Sitting close to the stove, Dowsabel was startled when the old man who approached her at the well of the White Horse Tavern entered the room. There was no chance of escape. Her screams for assistance served "Young Lewis," her black knight of the road who believed that his possession of the right hand of David Lewis was about to become his lucky talisman. He laid a long, strong whip over the horses flanks, fled into the night, leaving Dowsabel, the victim of her own fate.

Gagged by the old man, bewildered and dazed, Dowsabel was held prisoner in the kitchen of the tavern. Since he held her prisoner, would he not receive the reward? Or at least part of it? Yet other thoughts passed the mind of the old codger and twisted the key of fate. He quickly removed a Gypsy dagger from a long sheath, cut the ropes which bound Dowsabel's wrists and ankles, and bade her leave the tavern. When she had gone the old man turned and looked upon the face of a tall clock that stood in the corner of the kitchen, which had painted on the face of the clock, the strange Biscayan proverb, "Every hour wounds, the last one kills." The clock struck three.

Early the next morning the innkeeper and his wife came into the kitchen to find no trace of the young girl or the old man. Yet later that night, as they lit an evening fire for traveling guests, they unfolded a story which was to live in legend along the old Forbes Road. They told of the story of the right hand of David "Robber" Lewis.

Whatsit Named

One Laurel Messenger reader identified the "Whatsit" (May 85) as being a utensil for cutting butter which was shipped in large tubs. A wire was stretched between the two hooks and used in the same manner as a cheese cutter to cut the large mass of butter into smaller portions.

The Family of Jacob Rush

JACOB RUSH, Sr. was b. March 19, 1755 in New Jersey, d. Jan. 14, 1850 in Turkeyfoot Twp., Somerset Co. Pa. He was the son of William (1727-1800) Elizabeth Ream Rush (1725-1813). Family historians say that this Wm. Rush was a close relative of Dr. Benjamin Rush, signer of the Declaration of Independence. Tradition says, an uncle.

Jacob Rush, Sr. was a soldier of the Revolutionary War whose residence at time of enlistment was Bedford, now Somerset County. He served from Dec. 1, 1776 to May 1, 1778.

The family of William Rush appears to have come to western Pennsylvania with the party from New Jersey who settled in Turkeyfoot Township, in 1770 and founded in 1775 the Jersey Baptist Church.

Among the children of William and Elizabeth Ream Rush are the following:

Sarah (b. 1752-d. 22 July 1804); Jacob (b. 19 Mar. 1775-d. 13 Jan. 1850); Mary (b. 1760-d. 13 Oct. 1826); Benjamin (b. 1760-d. 6 Feb. 1827); Martha (b. 1761-d. 9 Feb. 1823) James.

Toll Gates of Somerset Co.

ty. It is the Addison toll house, standing after nearly 140 years, restored and preserved by the D.A.R. It was built on the seven mile section of the Old National or Cumberland Road which cut across the southwestern corner of Somerset County. Six of these toll houses, about filteen miles apart, lined the road from Cumberland to Wheeling. Two were made of stone (including Addison) and four were made of brick.

Addison was the only toll house in the county to be built of such durable materials, and that's probably the reason for its presence today. Most were only gates with small protection from the weather for the toll collector. Others were located at taverns or houses along the roads.

The passing of the toll houses was probably hastened by the need for much faster and harder surfaced roads which were usually too expensive to be maintained by tolls alone.

Today there is only one active toll gate in the county. For our readers who would like to regain this nearly lost page of our history, they may still participate. Although the "gate" is gone, the "toll" remains and one can't help but feeling a rush of nostalgia as the toll is paid when leaving the Pennsylvania Turnpike at the Somerset Interchange.

Holmes Co., Ohio Settled by Amish

By John D. Rugg

According to a 1938 thesis by Fred W. Almendinger at the University of Southern California, "An Historical Study of Holmes County, Ohio," the earliest Holmes County settlements were by the Amish of Somerset County, Pa.

Based on an earlier (1932) Ohio State University thesis by Leslie H. Fletcher. Almendinger's thesis recounts how an 1807 party of Amish pioneers set out from Somerset County to find a site in Iowa for new homes. Led by Jacob Miller, the party went overland to Pittsburgh and from there by water to Iowa, down the Ohio and up the Mississippi rivers.

Making no decision on an Iowa site, they returned by land through Illinois, Indiana and Ohio. Ohio land which is now Holmes County so favorably impressed them that, in 1809, Jacob Miller and his two sons and their wives settled just to the east on the banks of Sugar Creek in today's Tuscarawas County, Ohio.

In the following year, 1810, Joseph Mast, Jonas Miller, John Troyer and Christian Yoder settled in eastern Holmes County on Walnut Creek.

First church services were held that same year, just over the line in Tuscarawas County, conducted by Jacob Miller, who apparently was patriarch of the new settlement.

Following the War of 1812, many more Amish settlers arrived from Pennsylvania. Growing rapidly in the ensuing few years the settlement soon reached out into other surrounding Ohio counties, in which its descendants still live today.

NOTE: Almendinger's thesis was published in 1962 by the Library Archives of Holmes County, and a copy is in the collection of the Ohio Historical Society at Columbus.

The above mentioned Jacob Miller was born August 1754 and died 22 Feb. 1835. He was the son of John Miller, Sr., and Magdalena—? There is a tradition in this Miller family that John Sr. came from Berks County, Pa. and that he lived near the Hostetler family and was wounded during the "Hostetler Massacre" by the Indians. This explains

Went down to my sons yesterday and looked up Adams ship. According to Rupps it was Mascliffe Galley, commander Georg Duvall. Sorry about this, a cousin of my husbands offered to put all my information on the final disc along with adding her family info. I made the mistake of not proof reading and we have found a number of mistakes which we had to correct with the second copies we did. Missed this one though.
Bought back some Ohio books but didn't find much in them that would help you.
I found a Robert McMillan that moved from Pa. to Jefferson Co. in 1816.
Would this be yours if he is I will send you what info. there is on him.
Betty
